Long Drain On Revenues Cited in Tax Cut Warning

Budget Chief Tells Senate Committee World Conditions Make Step Unwise

A warning that "uncertain world conditions" point to big Federal outlays at least through 1950 yesterday failed to halt the Senate GOP tax reduction drive.

The warning was delivered by Budget Director James E. Webb, as the Senate Finance Committee opened hearings on the House-approved 6½-billion-dollar tax cut.

"Unless world conditions change drastically for the better the Federal budget for 1950 will be unbalanced by as much as $1 billion," Webb told the Senate. "That fact cannot be ignored in any consideration of legislation on taxes."

Webb personally presented the committee with what he termed "the hard facts of international life." Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder couldn't appear but sent a statement reiterating his House stand against tax cuts at this time. Snyder's statement, read to the committee by Chairman Eugene D. Millikin, admonished that "premature weakening of our revenue system will involve serious consequences both for our domestic prosperity and the peace of the world."

To maintain revenues around current levels, he again backed the President's own plan for $40 tax cuts for everybody offset by a 75 per cent excess profits tax on corporations. Snyder is scheduled to appear personally before the committee on March 11.

Members of the committee, however, continued to talk in terms of a $1½-billion-dollar tax cut that would slightly scale down, but not change the outline of the House-approved Knutson bill. The Senate GOP policy committee has already budgeted tax cuts to follow the Marshall Plan before the Senate.

At Peak in Fiscal 1950

Webb told the committee European recovery and other proposed international aid programs won't reach their spending peak of $10 billion until the end of the fiscal year. He said national defense expenditures may also have to increase in 1950 "even to maintain our present military strength." Even while Congress is trying to economize on domestic items, he warned that local pressures are building up for deferred public works.

To top it all, Webb testified: "Present indications are that this Nation will face uncertain world conditions for an extended period. Practically everything we do to meet these conditions will cost money and be reflected in the budget."

Snyder argued that the House-approved tax slash threatened to raise prices and create a deficit, without giving low income groups very much relief.

Huge Four-Jet Fighter Makes First Test Flight

Muroc Air Base, Calif., March 1 (AP).—The four-jet XP-57, reportedly the largest fighter plane ever built, made its first flight today.

The huge Curtiss-built ship, with Company Pilot B. Lee Miller at the controls, took off this afternoon and remained aloft more than an hour, the Air Force announced.

The plane is designed for the 600-mile-an-hour range, but an Air Force spokesman said, "We weren't interested especially in its speed."

Miller, Curtiss' manager of flight operations, reported it responded splendidly to its controls.

There have been reports, unconfirmed by any official source, that the Air Force plans to try to break through the sonic speed barrier with the XP-57.

The two-place fighter is almost as heavy as a B-17 Flying Fortress, which weighs around 27 tons.

Condon Associated With Alleged Spies, Anti-Red Unit Charges

Standards Bureau Head Attacked in House Group Report

By Alfred Friendly

A special House Subcommittee on Un-American Activities charged last night that Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, associated with alleged Soviet espionage agents.

The subcommittee's report, made to the full committee, charged that Condon was "one of the weakest links in our atomic security." It recommended that Secretary of Commerce Harman either fire Condon or publicly defend his retention of the scientist as one of the bureau chiefs.

In a statement issued last night, Condon said he hoped that the charge of being "one of the weakest links" was true, for in that event, "the country can feel absolutely safe."

He said his whole career and life demonstrated that he was "completely reliable, loyal, conscientious and devoted to the interest of my country."

Cleared of Disloyalty

The Commerce Department, meantime, issued a statement last night declaring that its loyalty board unanimously cleared Condon of a charge that he was disloyal to the Government.

The statement, made by Undersecretary William C. Foster, acting in Harman's absence from the city, said that the board conducted a hearing, as a result of questions that had been raised about the bureau director.

"The board's jurisdiction is limited solely to the question of loyalty," Foster explained. He said: "In its report, dated February 24, 1948, the board stated its unanimous opinion that no reasonable grounds exist for believing that Dr. Condon is disloyal to the Government of the United States."

The subcommittee, headed by Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), chairman of the full committee, said last night that last May 15, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover wrote Harman about Condon's association with alleged Soviet espionage agents.

The report quoted the letter as saying that FBI files reflect that as late as 1947 Condon was in contact with an individual alleged by a self-confessed Soviet espionage agent, to have engaged in espionage activities with the Russians in Washington, D. C., from 1941 to 1944.

The Hoover letter, as quoted in the subcommittee report, listed a series of alleged associations of Condon with persons in the Polish Embassy here.

Opinion Is Unanimous

The report added, "It is the unanimous opinion of this subcommittee that Dr. Condon should either be removed or a statement should be forthcoming from the Secretary of Commerce, setting forth the reasons why he has retained Dr. Condon in view of the derogatory information which he has had before him."

In his statement of reply, Dr. Condon said he had not read the subcommittee report and added: "I do not know what material the committee thinks it has which justifies such an accusation."

"When a similar accusation was made last June by Chairman Thomas," Condon continued, "I wrote to him and offered him my help. I could give him. He never replied, nor did any of his staff consult me."

"At that time I asked Secretary Harman to have a full investigation made. I provided him with all the material concerning my career and life that I could think of, and he collected all the material there was from the regular investigating agencies of the Government."

Thought Him Satisfied

"That was many months ago. I assume that he was fully satisfied, for he took no action."

The report was made public by Robert E. Stripling, chief committee investigator. The members of the subcommittee, besides Thomas, are Representatives Wood (D., Ga.) and Vail (R., Ill.).

Stripling said the subcommittee "was many months ago. I assume that he was fully satisfied, for he took no action."

At first when he heard this song "Civilization" in a Manhattan bar, he thought it was a rather nice tune. But red-haired Josephine Otello, 80, played it for an hour.

Finally he shouted, "Stop playing that song! Miss Otello looked at him and dropped another quarter in the box."

Police said Torres shot Miss Otello twice in the back. When she fell, he ran to her assistance, police report the seaman shot him twice also in the abdomen and neck.

Candidates Hamper Him, Truman Says

Fight for Presidency Retards Settlement Of Vital Problems, He Tells Newsmen

By Edward T. Follard

Key West, Fla., March 1.—President Truman said here today that the 1948 battle for the Presidency was having "a very bad effect" on the settlement of vital problems, both foreign and domestic.

There are so many candidates for President in and out of the Senate, he said, that it is difficult to have a nonpartisan and unbiased approach to the problems of the day.

It was Mr. Truman's first public statement on the 1948 campaign and was made under extraordinary circumstances.

President Deeply Tanned

On this, the tenth day of his trip away from Washington, he invited reporters to the garden of the "Little White House" at the U. S. Submarine Base here in Key West. He was deeply tanned and wearing a white tropical suit, standing in the shade of palm, cork and papaya trees, while a breeze came in from the Gulf of Mexico.

He answered questions for 20 minutes.

"The presidential year," he said in an authorized quotation, "is having a very bad effect on all approaches to the settlement of the difficulties with which we are faced—both foreign and domestic."

The press conference veered to politics when a reporter brought up a question that Mr. Truman has always managed to sidestep: "What about your candidacy in 1948?"

Sidesteps Question

Mr. Truman said he had been so jaded with foreign affairs and domestic affairs that he hasn't had time to think about the presidential campaign. Then came his remark about the presidential year having a bad effect on the settlement of vital problems.

Asked if he would serve if the Democratic National Convention nominated him for a full, four-year term, he said he would answer that when it happens, if it does.

"Mr. President," he was asked, "are you quarreling with the election system that which has brought about the situation you mention?"

He said that he wasn't—that it was something that couldn't be helped. It was a situation, he said, that we have to meet and deal with as best we can. We have so many candidates for President in and out of the Senate, he added, that it is difficult to have a nonpartisan and unbiased approach to problems.

No Comment on South

He said that he and former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, the 1920 Democratic nominee for President, had discussed the matter at lunch here yesterday. They agreed that '48 was much like '20 in this respect.

Any comment on the Southern "revolt"? The President was asked. Mr. Truman shook his head. He was then asked about the plan that Governor W. M. Tucker laid before the Virginia legislature last week.

Tucker asked that the names of presidential candidates be omitted from ballots in the Old Dominion State next November. Instead, the ballots would list states of electors without specific commitment to any presidential candidate, thereby making it possible for Virginia to

Milk at Record High Declared To Yield Dealers Low Profits

He insisted, however, that the "industry-wide margin of profit" of one tenth cent a quart is insufficient for normal operations.

Since the last price rise, on November 1, Burchell said, there has been a drop of 5 per cent in milk consumption in the area. Decreased consumption, he said, "always" follows a price rise.

Alexandria Dairy, said Burchell, serves 35,000 to 40,000 individual customers in Alexandria, Falls Church, and Arlington County. On the first of this year, the dairy took over the Virginia routes of Arlington County Dairy, which ceased operations. The Washington routes of the defunct dairy were purchased by Wakefield Dairy.

The grand jury, which is seeking to determine if there have been criminal conspiracies in the local milk situation, has been hearing witnesses since last Tuesday.

Burchell was preceded on the witness stand by Otto Phillips, vice president and general manager of Wakefield Dairy, who declined to talk to reporters.

Third witness of the day was Edgar N. Brawner, president of Chestnut Farms & Cheese, Chase Dairy, Brawner, who already has been questioned longer than any other witness, will reappear today.

Vandenberg Calls on Senate For Swift Approval of ERP To Help Head Off Third War

'Sense of Impending Tragedy' Congressional Board Sees War Threatening; Urges 12 Billion Yearly for Air Supremacy

Report Says Even 'Accidental Spark' May Start Fighting

By John G. Norris

Congress was told by its aviation policy board yesterday that the threat of a third world war is so great that America must achieve "complete supremacy in the air."

The 10-man group of Senators and Congressmen said the Nation needs an air force of 35,041 warplanes and must spend 12 billion dollars annually—more than current over-all defense outlays—to achieve it.

"It is folly to pretend that the world does not live under a sense of impending tragedy," said the joint air policy report. "Deliberately and continuously we are faced with the possibility of aggressive attack."

Political and industrial phases of "the next war" already are under way, the group declared, and "sparks may be struck, even accidentally, which could easily flare into open warfare."

The board sharply criticized the Joint Chiefs of Staff for failing to prepare a unified strategic defense plan since the end of the war. It declared it had been forced to accept separate statements of our air power needs from the Air Force and Navy.

President Truman and Secretary of Defense Forrestal should put "pressure" on the joint chiefs—Gen. Omar Bradley and Carl Spaatz and Admirals William D. Leahy and Louis Denfeld—to produce such a coordinated program. This, it was predicted, would cut the cost of an adequate air power plan materially.

Basic differences of opinion exist between the Navy and Air Force as to the mission of naval aviation, said the bipartisan board. The former contends that the unification act permits it to develop any type of weapon, while USAF chiefs hold that the Navy is preparing equipment for missions given exclusively to the Air Force.

Joint Chiefs of Staff Criticized for Failing To Unify Defenses

The Unification Act and the executive order defining roles and missions of the armed forces are in conflict on the point and should be clarified, it was urged.

Accepting "for the time being" the uncoordinated air programs of both services, the board put forward two alternative plans for expanding American air power. Plan A calls for an Air Force of 20,541 planes and a naval program of 14,500 aircraft, including reserves. This is what is needed, it was said, to enable the Nation to "mount promptly an effective, continuing and successful air offensive against a major enemy."

This would boost appropriations for air power from about 4½ to 11½ billion, plus hundreds of millions additional for pay and maintenance of naval air personnel. Plan B—providing the "strength" See AIR, Page 3, Column 1

Commodities Gain Sharply, Stocks Higher

Expected Action On Marshall Plan Believed a Factor

By John W. Ball

Grains, cotton and livestock all scored sharp gains yesterday. Wheat closed from 54½ to 55½ cents; corn was up 3½ to 7½ cents; oats as much as 4½ cents higher and soybeans closed up the permissible limit for one day's trading—8 cents a bushel.

At one time, half an hour before the close, May wheat was up to the limit of 10 cents and May and July corn up their daily limit of 8 cents. Profit taking caused prices to ease at the finish.

New York stocks were higher, but the gains were not as sharp as in commodities. At Chicago hogs went up $1 to $12.25 a hundred pounds. Top grade hit $24.75. Cattle were up to 50 cents a hundredweight higher. Choice fed steers hit $32.

Cotton Up in New York

At New York cotton closed from 70 cents to $3.30 a bale (500 pounds) above Saturday's close. The rise was attributed to a series of developments.

1. Widespread belief that recent developments in Czechoslovakia and Finland assure prompt action on the Marshall Foreign Aid Program.

2. Reports by the Office of Foreign Agriculture Relations that the world supply of grain is at the lowest level in years.

3. A surprisingly pessimistic winter wheat crop report by the Santa Fe Railway.

Jerusalem, March 1 (AP).—The British army said tonight that from now on its troops would use their weapons impartially against Jewish and Arab aggressors in the fighting within the Holy City.

An announcement from the military commander of Jerusalem said: "Prolonged firing between Arabs and Jews within Jerusalem makes life intolerable for its inhabitants. Such disturbances of the peace will not continue. Force will be used in incidents of this kind. The army will if necessary use weapons more powerful than those available to Arabs and Jews."

The statement added that since in such fighting it was impossible to determine who is the aggressor, "the army will therefore use its weapons impartially against whichever side is firing."

The implication was that British forces previously have generally withheld their fire during Jewish-Arab battles.

The military commander's announcement followed quickly a British mandatory government statement which bitterly charged the Jewish leadership in the Holy Land with condoning terrorism for political purposes.

Drastic Action

In its statement, the government virtually severed its relations with the Jewish agency.

The government warned that it was becoming "clearly more difficult for British troops to look upon members of the Jewish community as persons who are entitled, as they are, to protection."

In the strongest words it yet addressed to the Jews, the government said that continuance of "discriminate murder and condoned terrorism can only lead to forfeiture of all right in the eyes of the world to be numbered among civilized people."

The statement raised political tension to a boiling point in an otherwise comparatively quiet day in Palestine.

Radioactive Deposits Discovered in Italy

Milan, Italy, March 1 (AP).—Two Italian scientists said today they had found radioactive deposits of uranite, torbenite, metatorbenite and autunite near Dongo, on the Lake Como shore, where Mussolini and Clara Petacci were shot. They said reports that uranium, important element in the manufacture of the atomic bomb, had been found around Dongo were "grossly exaggerated."

'Disorderly' Law Ruling

Richmond, Va., March 1 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today ruled, in effect, that a State disorderly conduct law cannot be used to maintain racial segregation on buses.

In a unanimous opinion, the court reversed the Fairfax County Circuit Court in the case of Lottie E. Taylor vs. the Commonwealth, and dismissed the case against the Negro woman.

Mrs. Taylor boarded a bus in Washington on September 12, 1946, bound for Brightwood, in Madison County, Va. The bus operator asked her to move to the rear of the vehicle. She refused. Evidence was that her refusal was accompanying by loud talking or other breach of the peace.

The bus driver stopped the bus at Fairfax Courthouse and obtained a warrant charging Mrs. Taylor with disorderly conduct. She was fined $5 and costs in the Fairfax Circuit Court.

Negro groups have been watching the case closely. They regarded it as a test case to determine whether Virginia bus companies could maintain racial segregation indirectly through the disorderly conduct statute. Earlier, the United States Supreme Court had held they could not do so directly under

May Be Turning Point for Century To Come, He Warns In Stirring Speech

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg yesterday called upon the Senate for swift and full-scale approval of the European Recovery Program to "help stop World War III before it starts."

Again and again, in an emotional speech of 1½ hours, he reminded his fellow-Senators that they would bear the blame for failure if they delayed or whittled down the recovery bill.

He pictured the march of "aggressive communism" as an added reason for speed, with Czechoslovakia already "guttered by subversive conquest" and Finland in hourly danger of joining her.

He said the enactment of ERP could be "the turning point in history for a hundred years to come" and might well become "a beacon in the world's dark night."

"But if the beacon is to be lighted at all," he warned, "it had better be lighted before it is too late."

When he had finished, about 50 Senators on the floor jumped to their feet applauding him in one of the rare standing ovations of recent Senate history. Only Senators Glen Taylor (D., Idaho) and W. Lee O'Daniel (D., Tex.), the one a Henry Wallace follower and the other an out-and-out isolationist, stayed glued to their chairs.

From the House side, however, came a forebode of future delay and bickering when the Foreign Affairs Committee voted to include China relief, Greek-Turkish military aid and ERP in a single foreign aid bill. The House committee also voted to invite Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault (retired) to testify on the China program.

Vandenberg and his Senate committee had already decided to handle European recovery separately for the sake of speed. And in his speech yesterday Vandenberg left no doubt that he would fight in conference, if necessary, against anything that would delay or complicate ERP's passage.

"Whatever we are to do, Mr. President, let it be done without undue delay," he pleaded yesterday. "The exposed frontiers of hazard move almost hourly to the west. Time is of the essence in this battle for peace even as it is in the battles of a war."

"Nine months ago Czechoslovakia wanted to join western Europe in this great enterprise for stability and peace—remember that today Czechoslovakia joins only such enterprise as Moscow may direct."

"There is only one voice left in the world which is competent to hear the determination of other peoples in western Europe. See AID, Page 2, Column 5

Store Owner Found Shot To Death Here

Meyer Meyrovitch, 30, proprietor of a small market at 90 O. St. N.W., was found mysteriously shot to death in his store at about 8:15 last night.

Police said he could have been the victim of a holdup man. However, relatives reported no money missing from the store.

Meyrovitch's body, police said, was discovered behind the counter in the store by a janitor from nearby Dunbar High School who had entered to make a purchase.

Meyrovitch was pronounced dead at Casualty Hospital and his body taken to the morgue. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner said the storekeeper had been shot once, in the chest.

W. D. Russell, who lives nearby at 86 O. St. N.W., told police he had glanced inside the store and saw a body lying face down behind the counter. He said Meyrovitch normally closed his store at about 8:30 p. m.

A widow, Meyrovitch lived with his sister, Mrs. Betty Tashoff, and three children, 435 Ingraham St. N.W. His children are Clara and Elsie, twins, 10, and Loraine, 7. He had owned the store since 1929.

Rep. Miller Asks D. C. for Data on Welfare Lands

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Neb.) said yesterday he is calling on the District Commissioners for a complete report on lands and buildings held by the city for welfare use.

He made the announcement after visiting two District-owned areas in nearby Maryland—the 106-acre Jolly Acres site near Laurel, and a 132-acre site near Muirkirk.

Miller also inspected the District's Home for the Aged and Infirmed at Blue Plains, and the new Receiving Home site on Mount Olivet rd. ne., as chairman of the House District Subcommittee in Charge of Welfare Matters.

He said he believed the District could find a use for buildings now being demolished at Jolly Acres, and for a large unused brick building at Muirkirk.

Russian Pact Questioned by Finnish Group

Helsinki, March 1 (U.P.)—Conservatives in the Finnish parliament tentatively are opposed to a treaty of friendship and mutual aid with Russia, Arvo Salminen, chairman of the group, said today.

He emphasized, however, that the party's stand is not yet definite. The reaction of the conservatives, a minority group, became known as President Juho Paasikivi opened discussions with cabinet members on Prime Minister Stalin's proposal for such a pact against "possible German aggression."

Paasikivi conferred at the presidential palace for three and a half hours with Premier Mauno Pekala, foreign minister Carl Enckell, vice foreign minister Reinhold Sveento and Lieut. Gen. Aarne Sihvo, commander-in-chief of the Finnish army.

Well informed circles reported that Paasikivi was in favor of signing the treaty. The informants said they believe the president feels that Russian-Finnish relations might be aggravated to a dangerous degree if the Soviet bid is rejected.

Salminen said Paasikivi had placed this single question before various parliamentary groups: "Shall Finland appoint a delegation to discuss forming this new pact?"

Salminen said the conservatives feel the peace treaty with Russia is enough.

(The Conservative, or Coalition Party, holds 28 of the 200 seats in parliament. The largest bloc is the Popular Democratic Union, composed of Communists and pro-Moscow Social Democrats. The union has 51 deputies in parliament.)

It is known, but not officially confirmed, that the Finnish Communist Party decided on Saturday to advocate acceptance of the pact.

It also is known that on Friday the small Liberal Party held an unofficial meeting of its parliamentary group, which decided in principle to oppose the treaty.

Norwegians Demonstrate

Oslo, Norway, March 1 (U.P.)—Thousands of students and others demonstrated in Oslo tonight, protesting the seizure of power by Communists in Czechoslovakia.

Political leaders said anti-Communist feeling was running higher in the country than at any time since the end of the war.

Political mass meetings and newspaper editorials have attacked sharply the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia and Soviet pressure on Finland.

Premier Einar Gerhardsen, a social democrat, told a labor rally last night "what has happened has caused anxiety and depression here."

The students gathered outside the Czech legation in a protest against what they termed "the aggression against the students and professors of the University of Prague."

Carrying torches, slogans and Czech flags they marched to the "People's House," where the Communist Youth organization was celebrating events in Czechoslovakia.

Erban said the action committees, which have spearheaded the Communist take-over, are constitutional, because "the constitution is based on the popular will" and "the events of the last few days have shown that the action committees are in perfect accord with the wishes of the working population."

Kopecky commented that "we hope to continue our friendly feelings toward western countries."

Minor-party representatives in the government declared that they represented the rank-and-file of their parties despite the fact that several had been ousted from leading positions for working too closely with the Communists.

to survive in their own choice of their own way of life. It is our voice. It is in part the Senate's voice.

"Surely we can all agree, whatever our shades of opinion, that the hour has struck for this voice to speak as soon as possible."

To gain time, Vandenberg suggested that Senators submit their amendments in writing rather than offer them from the floor in the coming debates. Only one amendment came yesterday—from Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), proposing that "the political unification of Europe" be mentioned specifically as an American objective in the recovery program.

Others Due Today
There will be others today, when the debate begins in earnest. Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Neb.), the majority whip, announced that the Senate would debate ERP daily, instead of the normal three days a week, until it reached a decision.

The opening of debate yesterday had all the air of a great occasion. The public galleries were packed; French Ambassador Henri Bonnet was among those in the diplomatic gallery, and many members of the House of Representatives stood around the Senate floor to listen. Among them were Representatives John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), who probably will be floor leader of the ERP debate in the House, and Richard Wigglesworth (R., Mass.), a key figure of the House Appropriations Committee, which is expected to slash the cost of the program after it has been authorized.

Cites Isolation "Folly"
Vandenberg began by pointing to the "folly" of American isolation "in a fore-shortened, atomic world."

"The greatest nation on earth either justifies or surrenders its leadership," he said. "We must choose. There are no blueprints to guarantee results. We are entirely surrounded by calculated risks, but I profoundly believe that the pending program is the best of these risks."

"I have no quarrel with those who disagree, because we are dealing with imponderables. But I am bound to say to those who disagree that they have not escaped to safety by rejecting or subverting this plan. They have simply fled to other risks, and I fear far greater ones."

Western Europe's recovery is as important to America as to Europe, he went on. "This vast friendly segment of the earth must not collapse," he said. "The iron curtain must not come to the rims of the Atlantic either by aggression or default."

He thought the 16 European countries acted "bravely" in their response to Secretary Marshall's Harvard speech, because they met "in virtual defiance of the Russian bear which promptly showed its teeth."

Sees Soviet Conspiracy
In a fiery passage he described Russia's counter-measures as "a conspiracy to prevent the emergence of order out of chaos, stability out of confusion, and western freedom out of hopelessness." Yet, he said, "there is nothing in the plan which threatens the Soviet police empire with any sort of consequence which she does not herself choose voluntarily to invite"—nothing, for example, to check the resumption of east-west European trade.

The Senator hotly denied that the western Europeans simply totaled up "a bill to present to Uncle Sam." What they really did, he said, was to make mutual pledges "of amazing portent and vitality," and to start proving at once that they "meant exactly what they said." And he recalled that the total of their needs had been cut to 17 billion dollars for four and a half years.

Believes It Peace Bargain
"In other words," the Senator said, "this peace investment might cost one-third as much in 4½ years as we appropriated for war in just one bill that passed the Senate five minutes and without a roll call one June afternoon in 1944."

"War has no bargains. I think peace does. I believe I am talking about one now."

He then reviewed the major points of the bill that emerged from the Foreign Relations Committee. He insisted that the committee's figure of $53,000,000,000 for the first twelve months was "sustained by the most complete studies and surveys I have ever seen in a congressional committee."

"At the very least," he said, in a dig at those who would cut the figure further, "it is entitled to a presumption of relative dependability until more competent authority competently proves otherwise."

"If this plan can succeed on the basis recommended by its authors, no well-wisher would allow it to fail at its inception through lack of original resources essential to its success. That would be 'penny wisdom and pound foolishness.' It could even be unwitting sabotage. . . . We should start with figures which enjoy the preponderance of supporting evidence rather than to arbitrarily slice off what might be the difference between success and still-born failure. Therefore, prudence recommends that we launch the plan with figures which offer no alibi for failure."

Two Spanish Bankers Coming To Ask Private U. S. Credits

Madrid, March 1 (U.P.)—Representatives of the two Spanish banking houses will depart for the United States this week to seek private credits for Spain, informed sources said tonight.

The trip is being made by Count Fontanar, of the Urquijo Bank, and Ignacio Herrero, of the Hispano Americano Bank.

According to informants who declined to be identified, the trip is purely private, and is not connected in any way with the Spanish government. The sources said it was possible the bankers might try to sound out the Export-Import bank on industrial credits.

(In Washington, Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer, told reporters a private loan would be a matter for American bankers and the Spaniards alone. He added that no change of United States policy was involved.)

The foreign ministry's press office described as unworthy of comment a report by Spanish Republican source in London that an official mission was leaving Spain within two weeks seeking $200,000,000 in the United States.

Commons Told Molotov Sees No New War In 5 Years

London, March 1 (U.P.)—Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov told a London dinner party less than three months ago that there would be no new war for at least five years, a member of the Labor Party said today in the House of Commons.

Capt. Raymond Blackburn said a friend of his had attended "the last dinner party given in London" by Molotov and his deputy, Andrei Vishinsky, during the last session of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

"Molotov forecast one by one the very things that have occurred since," Blackburn said. "Molotov said that he was under no illusions that war was inevitable, but that there would be no war for five years."

"We must halt the advance of the police state across Europe before it is too late."

12 Billions Urged for Air

necessary to prevent the loss of a war upon the onset of hostilities"—would cost about two billion less annually. It would not provide sufficient reserves of new planes to carry on a sustained offensive.

The board estimated that the national budget would total over 45 billion by 1953 if Plan A is adopted—eight billion more than at present.

In the major recommendations, the report of the joint congressional board largely agreed with that of President Truman's air policy committee, which submitted its recommendations two months ago.

Major difference between the two documents is in their proposals for reorganization of governmental agencies dealing with civil aviation. The earlier report proposed curtailment of the functions of the Civil Aeronautics Board and building up the status of the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

The congressional board recommended:

1. The CAB should take over from the CAA authority for issuing and enforcing regulations dealing with the competency of pilots, airworthiness of planes, air carrier operating specifications and other rules dealing with the economics of air operations. CAB should be entirely independent of the Department of Commerce, said the board.

2. An independent Director of Air Safety, charged with investigating and analyzing plane accidents should be created.

3. The CAA should be abolished and replaced by an Office of Civil Aviation in the Commerce Department. The agency should have two units—a new Federal Airways Service and a new Bureau of Aeronautical Development.

4. The present Air Coordinating Committee should have legislative status and decide issues by majority vote.

5. Increased funds should be voted for aviation research, with top priority given to the Fairchild Aircraft Co.'s project for development of atomic energy for propulsion of aircraft.

6. Establishment of a special "joint task group" to prepare to repel an unannounced atomic attack against the Nation. An air raid warning network is "imperative."

7. Federal financial aid in the development of new types of transports and cargo planes.

8. CAB regulation of contract air carriers.

9. Early consideration of the movement of all first class mail by air.

10. Military plane procurement programs should be for five years rather than the present two.

Truman Asks Another 3 Years For Reciprocal Trade Pact

President Truman yesterday invited a first class battle with the Republican Congress by asking for an extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for another three years.

A request for a one-year extension had been foreseen, since the act expires June 30, but the three-year proposal came as a surprise on Capitol Hill. Even a one-year extension without crippling amendments apparently would have had a rough passage in view of the hostility of many powerful House Republicans.

The present act gives the President authority to negotiate mutual reductions of tariffs up to 50 per cent without specific congressional sanction. Last November after long negotiations of Geneva, a huge series of reductions was announced, cutting 23 nations duties on thousands of American products and reducing American tariffs to the lowest level since the Underwood Tariff of 1913.

"The importance of the act is greater today than it has ever been," the President wrote in a 1400-word message sent from his vacation headquarters in Florida. He said extension of the act was essential to world economic recovery, since it would promote a greater flow of world trade.

He described the Geneva tariff agreements as "a landmark in in-

Mortar Shells Land In Center of City; 3 Reported Killed

Salonika, Greece, March 1 (U.P.)—

The Greek army said guerillas began bombarding the city of Naoussa tonight with mortar shells.

Naoussa is 50 miles west of Salonika.

Officers of the Third Army Corps said the barrage began at 6 p. m. and was still in progress four hours later. Shells were falling in the center of the city.

An official report said three civilians had been killed and six wounded. No other details were available.

It was reported unofficially that three guerillas sneaked into Salonika by boat tonight and threw hand grenades at the home of Aristidis Bassiakos, governor-general of northern Greece. The report said Bassiakos was not home and that a military guard was wounded.

60 Greek Navy Officers And Sailors Arrested

Athens, March 1 (U.P.)—Naval police have arrested more than 60 officers and sailors on charges of trying to sabotage the royal Greek navy, an authoritative source said today.

The men will be tried by a naval court martial.

The informant, who declined to be identified by name, said those seized were members of "a Communist organization" composed mainly of sailors who participated in a Middle East mutiny in 1943. Some of the men were on active duty. Others had been dismissed.

Those arrested were quoted as confessing plans to damage Greek warships and naval installations in general.

The arrests were revealed as the Athens newspapers told of a swiftly moving Greek army offensive on a 30-mile front in which government forces chased guerillas from 16 villages near the Albanian border after "violent hand-to-hand fighting."

Meanwhile, the government charged that Greece's northern neighbors are plotting wholesale kidnappings of Greek children.

Alexandros Dalietos, chief Greek liaison representative, made the charge to the United Nations Commission on the Balkans, at Salonika. He said the aim was to make the victims "blind and fanatical instruments" of totalitarian regimes.

"The Greek nation," he said, "is now threatened by a new alarming bandit drive to recruit approximately 50,000 children to be sent to Yugoslavia, Albania, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary for re-education."

He said some children, 3 to 14 years old, already have been abducted from several villages.

He quoted a radio Sofia broadcast as saying: "600 Greek children aged 4 to 10 are expected to arrive in Budapest. These children will be placed under the protection of Hungary."

British Plan Impartiality

Lieut. Gen. Gordon McMillan, general officer commanding British troops in Palestine, was blasted by a road mine, but there were no casualties.

The United Press reported there had been two abortive attempts to kill McMillan within 24 hours—Editor's note.

Sporadic incidents throughout the country today brought the death toll to 1513 since partition was approved.

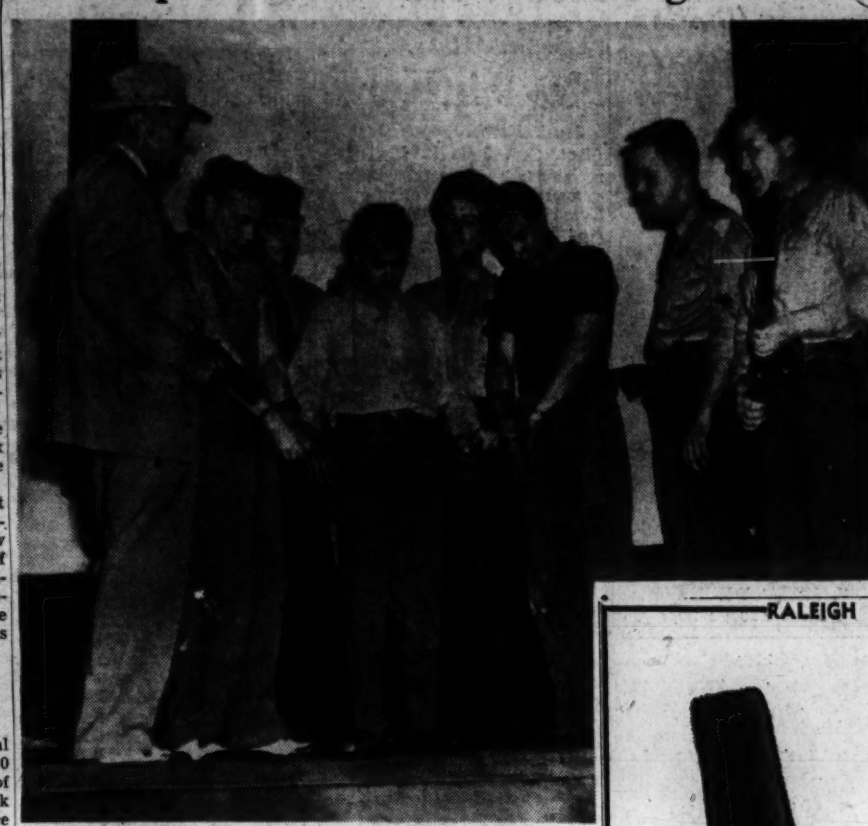

Jewish reaction termed the government announcement "unfair and even insulting." A consensus of Arab opinion to the criticism of the Jewish agency was: "It's about time."

The statement followed Sunday's blasting of a British troop train that killed 27 British soldiers. The Stern Gang, Jewish extremist underground group, said it was responsible.

Reds Declared Behind Bloody Africa Riot

London, March 1 (U.P.)—Fourteen persons were killed and an estimated 140 injured in weekend rioting at Accra, capital of the British gold coast, the Colonial Office said today. Order now has been restored in the African colony.

David R. Rees-Williams, parliamentary secretary for colonial affairs, told the House of Commons "there was almost certainly Communist incitement" behind the disorders.

The rioting began Saturday when the ex-service men's union, a minority group of veterans, left a prescribed route of march and converged on the governor's residence to present a petition. The colonial office said it did not know the nature of the petition, or the reason for the riot.

Shots were fired, the Colonial office said, after police tried to stop the rioters. When the dis-

Briton Hits Red Arms Plan

London, March 1 (U.P.)—Defense Minister A. V. Alexander said today that the Soviet Union advocates disarmament for everyone else, but maintains a huge army "to work its will throughout the world."

The blast came as he opened debate in Commons on the government's defense policy for the fiscal year 1948-49, outlined in a white paper.

"We are not told what is happening in Russia," Alexander declared. "No one publishes a white paper in Moscow."

"What they want is that Britain and other freedom-loving countries should deprive themselves of means of defense, while the Soviet Union maintains large forces with which to work its will throughout the world."

The House cheered loudly. Alexander proposed: (1) Britain's armed forces be reduced by 224,000 to 716,000 by 1949—around a core of 400,000 trained regulars; (2) Maintenance of "adequate" forces in the Middle East, and (3) retention of peacetime conscription. He flatly rejected a Communist amendment calling for a cut in the armed forces to 500,000 men and women.

"It is quite clear why this motion has been put down," Alexander said. "The reason is the same as that which promoted Russian proposals on disarmament in the United Nations assembly."

Gerhart Eisler, 3 Other Alleged Reds Start Hunger Strike in Cabin on Ellis Island

New York, March 1 (AP).—Four alleged alien Communists held on Ellis Island on deportation warrants sought today to obtain their freedom by beginning a hunger strike.

The Justice Department said the men stayed away from the mess hall for breakfast and lunch and announced they would refuse other meals. The four are: Gerhart Eisler, described by a House committee as the Nation's "No. 1 Communist"; John Williamson, labor secretary for the American Communist party;

Ferdinand C. Smith, national secretary of the CIO National Maritime Union.

Charles A. Doyle, long-time regional director of the CIO Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

All of the men have been denied bail pending completion of the exclusion proceedings against them. Half a dozen men were picketing the Justice Department Building in Washington, protesting the denial of bail for the four men at Ellis Island. The pickets handed out circulars bearing the name of the Civil Rights Congress of Maryland and the District of Columbia. The four men have been sharing the same cabin on Ellis Island but eating at a general mess hall.

The Justice Department said they had been permitted visitors and "apparently their cabin is nicely stocked with food these visitors have brought to them."

Named in Report Accusing Condon

MRS. JOZEF WINIEWICZ
He Knew Envoys' Wife

Anti-Red Unit Hits Condon

met last Friday night at Walter Reed Hospital, where Thomas is recuperating from an illness. Stripling said it was released to public today "because of the urgency of the matter involved."

Stripling did not expand on the element of "urgency" at the present time. Last spring Thomas made the charge of Soviet espionage against Condon in a magazine article, but did not go into detail on the sources of his accusations.

The subcommittee report said that the Bureau of Standards "has become the chief target of espionage agents of numerous foreign powers." Its director, the report went on, "knowingly or unknowingly, entertained and associated with persons who are alleged Soviet espionage agents," and "has lent his name and influence to one of the principal Communist endeavors in the United States."

The committee identified the organization as the American Soviet Science Society. This group, it added, is affiliated with the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, "which was recently cited as a subversive organization" by Attorney General Clark.

(Dr. Condon said last night that he is a member of the American Soviet Science Society, though he has never attended a meeting or paid any dues. He said he was not a member of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, as far as he knew, unless membership in the subsidiary group meant inclusion in the one-time parent organization.)

(The Science Society, backed by a grant of $25,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation, disseminated its letter from the Council in 1946, Condon said. Its trustees include Winthrop W. Aldrich, K. T. Compton and John Foster Dulles.

(Condon said that when he accepted an invitation to join the Science Society, its function was primarily to obtain translations of Russian scientific works, which were made available to the Army and Navy. At that time, Condon said, its parent organization, the Council—though subsequently being named on Clark's subversive list—had such sponsors as Senators Thomas (R., Utah), Saltonstall (R., Mass.) and Cooper (R., Kans.)—Editor's note.)

Condon declared last night that "there are no new alleged facts which have not been available for many months." He said the "true meaning" of the attack was related to "an undercover attempt to smear civilian control of atomic energy."

Condon had been scientific adviser to the Senate Committee on Atomic Energy which drafted the present atomic control law.

Condon asserted, "If I am the weak link in atomic energy, then the Nation need have no fear. It is very gratifying. I hope it is true, for then we have nothing to worry about."

The subcommittee quoted Hoover's letter to Harriman as saying: "Mr. and Mrs. Condon associated with several individuals connected with the Polish Embassy in Washington, D. C. Among these are Mrs. Joseph Winiewicz, wife of the Polish Ambassador; Virginia Woark, a clerk employed at the Polish Embassy; Helen M. Harris, secretary of the Polish Embassy; and Ignace Zlotowski, former counselor of the Polish Embassy and presently a Polish delegate to the United Nations."

"Helen Harris is identified as a former secretary to the American Soviet Science Society during the time it was known as Science Committee of the National American Soviet Friendship Society. She went to work for the Polish Embassy in the fall of 1946.

"Zlotowski is identified as a nuclear scientist who studied with Joliet Curie, known member of the Communist Party. He was former secretary of the American Soviet Society. It is known that in February, 1947, Zlotowski purchased 270 books on atomic energy which had been published by the Department of Agriculture."

"It is also known that Mr. and Mrs. Condon were in contact with several other persons closely associated with this alleged Soviet espionage agent. It is also reliably reported that in March, 1947, Zlotowski offered the use of the Polish diplomatic pouch to scientific groups as a means of transmitting scientific material outside the United States, dissemination of which had to be restricted because of security reasons by military authorities."

The subcommittee said that at the end of November, 1947, the name of Dr. Condon was carried as "in a pending status" on a list of Bureau of Standard employees cleared by a loyalty examination.

In May, 1947, the subcommittee said, Dr. Condon reorganized the Bureau and set up 14 separate divisions, naming himself head of the atomic physics division.

The subcommittee declared Dr. Condon and his wife "have been guests at the home of persons who are attached to the embassies of Soviet satellite nations" and that present at the time "were the representatives of official Soviet agencies."

Shortly after Condon's appointment, the subcommittee said, he appointed Demetri I. Vinogradoff, a Russian-born scientist, as liaison representative for the bureau.

It noted that in December, 1946, Vinogradoff made arrangements with the first secretary of the Russian Embassy, F. T. Orekhov, to discuss the problem of exchanging books, pamphlets and other written material. It was agreed, the report said, that the discussion between Orekhov and Vinogradoff "would be informal because, otherwise, it would be necessary to obtain a clearance from the State Department."

"It is also known that Vinogradoff has been in close touch with Capt. A. F. Belikov, assistant naval attaché of the Russian Embassy," the committee added.

"The exchange of scientific material with the Soviet Union is a one-way street," the subcommittee commented, and said the United States "is pursuing a dangerous and foolish policy of making scientific data available to the Soviet Union."

The report said that Dr. Condon "has in the past five years been in personal contact and communication with a number of individuals who are American citizens, but who are members of the Communist Party."

It said it has no evidence that Condon is a member of the Communist Party "but as a member of the executive committee of the American Soviet Science Society... he has lent his name and influence to one of the principal

Hodge Sets Election for May 9 in Korea

Seoul, Korea, March 1 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge announced today a general election of representatives to establish a Korean government would be held May 9 under United Nations observation.

(Implying that it was to be an election throughout Korea, this ignored the fact that the Russians who occupy North Korea have refused to have any part in it.)

(The general election evidently can be held only in the American-occupied south half of the country unless Russia should make an entirely unexpected about-face.)

(The U. N. Little Assembly on February 28 told its Korean commission to ignore the Soviet boycott and start the elections, although the Russians have refused even to allow the commissioners to enter North Korea or to talk to them.)

Commodities Gain Sharply

and Marketing Administration has reentered the flour market. Bids were asked yesterday by the Commodity Credit Corporation for the purchase of flour equivalent to 423,000 bushels of wheat—a relatively small amount.

The day's trading was marked by a shortage of cash corn and oats. The grain department of the Santa Fe, which serves much of the great southwestern winter wheat belt, was extremely pessimistic—its statements more than offsetting reports of heavy rains and snow extending from the Texas Panhandle to Nebraska.

"Generally speaking, conditions remain critical," said the Santa Fe, estimating the crop at from 1/2 to 60 per cent of last year.

In spite of yesterday's gains, prices are still well below those of February 3—the day before the collapse in prices began. Last night the net decline since February 3 was:

May wheat, down 4 1/4 cents; May corn, 20 1/2 cents; May oats, 4 1/2 cents; top hogs off $2.25 a hundredweight; top steers off $4 a hundred.

Yesterday's gains were immediately reflected in the flour market. Minneapolis millers raised family flour 36 cents a hundred pounds. Mill feeds (which figure largely in dairy and meat prices) were up from $1.50 to $3 a ton.

communist endeavors in the United States."

The subcommittee said the "ruthless rush of Stalin through Europe" necessitates a "revision of the policy and thinking of this Government and the people of the United States regarding communism."

"In this country they (the Russians) haven't gotten as far as they have in Czechoslovakia, but they got pretty far, because they got a man as Vice President of the United States, and he is now their candidate for President, and he is the same man who recommended Dr. Condon as director of the Bureau of Standards."

Christoffel Held No Red Recruiter

Five members of the CIO Auto Workers local once headed by Harold R. Christoffel swore yesterday that they never heard him trying to get people to join the Communists.

Defense Counsel O. John Rogge called the union members to the stand in Christoffel's trial for perjury, for telling the House Labor Committee he was not a Communist and didn't even know the Communist leader Fred Blair. All five said they never saw Blair around the union officers.

And all of the five said they were not Communists themselves, and never had been. One of them—George Laich, 36—admitted he used to get the Daily Worker, but he said it was only for six months or so.

Fur Union Man Held For Deportation

The Justice Department announced yesterday the arrest for deportation of Irving Potash. It said he is a member of the Communist Party's National committee.

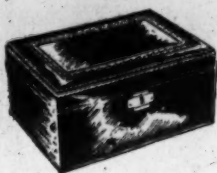

The department said Potash is a Russian alien who has made his home in the United States since 1915. It said Potash is the manager of the furriers' national conference, which is associated with the furriers joint council of the CIO International Fur and Leather Workers Union.

Girl Indicted For Murder in Mate Killing

A District grand jury returned 19 indictments yesterday, ordering three men held on charges of rape or attempted rape and holding a 17-year-old girl on a first-degree murder charge in the slaying of her husband.

The girl, Mrs. Indiana Tucker, 378 Florence st. ne., is charged with shooting her husband, Wilbert, 24, on February 9 after a quarrel in their home during which her husband threatened to kill her.

Mrs. Tucker told police that she beat her husband to the gun which was lying on a trunk in their bedroom. Juvenile authorities waived jurisdiction on the defendant so that her case could be handled by the higher court.

Held on Six Charges

Held on the sex charges are Albert C. Lewis, 28, 709 Brent rd. Rockville, Md.; Harry Dyson, 29, 423 3rd. nw. and Kenneth Wilcher, 26, no fixed address.

Lewis and Dyson were both held on charges of assault with intent to commit rape and Wilcher is charged with raping a 19-year-old waitress whom he had escorted home from work.

The grand jury also ordered held for trial William H. Minor, 29, 707 24th st. ne., charged with a dangerous weapon and assault on a policeman. Minor stabbed Pvt. Alton Thomas of the Fourth Precinct seven times as Thomas attempted to place Minor under arrest on a charge of drunkenness on February 8.

Thomas in trying to defend himself shot Minor in the shoulder. The shuffle took place while they were waiting for the patrol wagon to arrive at 2d and D sts. sw.

partner) would act as my attorney, too."

Tells of Meeting Meyers

Later he told about lunching with Meyers and Amen after he had begun his "false" testimony in closed session, on October 4.

He had an afternoon session with the committee, Lamarre said, and then he and Mrs. Lamarre had dinner at "Old New Orleans" with Turner and Meyers.

They picked up Amen, "and a lady whose name I can't remember at the lady's apartment where we had one or two drinks," Lamarre testified, and then went to dinner. Then on October 6, Lamarre said, he was back again for another grilling before the committee. That night, he said, at the Carlton, Readnow told Meyers that the story that he had used all his $15,000 annual executive salary would sound "much more likely" if he, Readnow, had 10,000 or 15,000 to his name when he talked to the committee. Meyers said he couldn't raise the much money on short notice.

Subsequently, Lamarre said he decided to get advice from his attorney in Dayton, Ohio, and when he talked with the attorney, Robert C. Anse, he was advised to tell the committee the truth.

Plant Manager Ruled a Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued by Dr. John A. Sims, Alexandria coroner, yesterday in the fatal shooting of Robert R. Turner, 38-year-old Arlington bottling company executive.

Mr. Turner was shot Saturday afternoon in the washroom of Royal Crown Bottling Co., 1100 Jefferson Davis hwy., of which he was manager.

Plant employees said he had taken the gun from a desk drawer a few minutes before, saying he intended to take it home.

Funeral services were held yesterday at Grace Episcopal Church, The Plains, Va., burial following at Middleburg, Va.

Buying of Huntington Federal Site Urged

Representative Ellis (R., W. Va.) yesterday urged the Senate to approve the acquisition of a site for a new Federal building at Huntington, W. Va.

Ellis told a Senate public works subcommittee he thought the site could be bought for $90,000 to $100,000, which he termed "reasonable."

Alabama Primary To Be Test of Revolt

Senator Hill to Run for Delegate-at-Large
To Democratic National Convention May 4

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

An early election test of Southern revolt sentiment in the bellwether State of Alabama was projected yesterday.

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) announced he will run for delegate-at-large to the Democratic National convention on a pledge to support President Truman as "head of the Democratic party."

In a statement announcing his candidacy, the former Senate Democratic whip, who nominated Franklin Roosevelt for a third term, opposed the President's civil rights program but in effect went on record against a Dixie bolt.

Will Be Chosen May 4

Alabama convention delegates will be chosen in a State-wide primary May 4.

Alexandria Will Ballot Today On Council Election Method

Alexandria will go to the polls today to vote on the method of electing city councilmen.

For the third time in 16 years, voters will be asked whether the council should consist of seven men elected from the city at large, or of nine men, six from wards and three at large.

The combination form, now in use, carried by strong majorities in previous referendums held in 1932 and 1944.

Both sides yesterday were sure of victory. And both called for a large vote for a clear cut decision.

Mayor John J. Sparkman, will make his bid for re-election in the same primary.

In the campaign leading up to the primary, both Hill and Sparkman are expected to appeal for a united Democratic party in the November election, despite differences on the civil rights program.

Hill's announcement, highlighting a breach in Southern Democrats' own ranks on the threatened party bolt, contrasted sharply with moves in some Southern States to sidetrack Truman as the nominee.

Suggests Withdrawal

Even as Hill appealed for within-party settlement of Democratic differences, Senator John Bell Williams (D., Miss.) told the House:

"I humbly suggest to President Truman that he sacrifice his personal ambitions to the welfare of the country and party, and gracefully withdraw his name from consideration as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination."

Williams charged that Mr. Truman, by pressing his civil rights recommendations, has "repudiated the support of genuine States' rights Democrats, and brought about conditions of chaos and discord within the Democratic party."

GOP Fans Revolt Again

Congressional Republicans, who last week moved two key civil rights proposals (anti-lynching and anti-poll tax) out of House and Senate subcommittees, meanwhile fanned the revolt flames a little more.

A House Appropriations Subcommittee headed by Representative Frank B. Keefe (D., Miss.), approved a rider to the Federal Security-Labor Department bill cutting off substantial grants to States refusing equal employment and education opportunities to the members of all races.

Keefe, who told reporters it was time for Congress "to stop talking and do something to stop discrimination," said Federal grants involved included unemployment compensation, vocational education and medical aid.

Keefe said the restriction did not mean white and Negro citizens would have to attend the same schools. If the schools are operated with Federal funds, he said, it did mean they would have to provide the same facilities for both races, however, in order to qualify for Federal aid.

Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) meanwhile protested to the House for the second time the plan to admit Negro doctors to practice at Gallinger Hospital and predicted it would lead to race riots in the District.

Between Rankin's two protests, Representative Keefe defended the Gallinger plan and accused Rankin of trying to stir up race prejudice.

In Middle of Three-Way Split

Hill's announcement for delegate-at-large to the Democratic convention, on a pledge to continue supporting Truman, put him right in the middle of a three-way split.

On his left, Gov. James E. Folsom has been lambasting the Marshall Plan. On his right, G. T. McCorvey, chairman of the State Democratic Committee, has demanded a State rights in lieu of civil rights plank in the Democratic platform and unfettered Presidential elections.

Hill is expected to hit chiefly at Folsom, and his attack on the Marshall Plan. The Alabama governor, elected with CIO support, has himself a candidate for delegate-at-large and has asked the State's "favorite son" endorsement for President. Alabama political observers said both Hill and Folsom could be elected, since eight delegates-at-large will be chosen. They said the primary should nonetheless afford a fair test of Hill's middle-of-the-road bid to heal the breach.

Truman Says He's Hampered

withheld its electoral vote from Mr. Truman.

The President, in reply, said that every state has the right to decide how to carry on elections provided they grant everybody the right to express his opinion at the polls.

He added that, under the Constitution, presidential electors were free agents and remained so until 1836. Since then, he said, the electors have been elected and instructed. He said he thought Virginia was trying to restore the old Constitutional approach of uninstructed delegates, and he added that it hadn't worked very well.

He was asked what specific matters he had in mind when he said the 1948 presidential battle was having a bad effect.

The foreign situation in general, he said, and the housing problem at home in particular, together with several other problems that should be handled only on a bipartisan basis.

In the political discussion, a reporter asked the President if he thought that the name of Senator Claude Pepper of Florida would help the Democratic ticket in '48 if he were made Vice Presidential nominee.

Mr. Truman said he wasn't making any observations about vice presidential candidates, either.

Here the name of former Postmaster General James A. Farley was brought up. "Big Jim" was present at the recent Jefferson-Jackson dinner in Washington. Did the President think this meant Farley was returning to politics this year?

Mr. Truman told the reporter that he would have to ask Farley. At one point, the Chief Executive's expression changed suddenly. This was when the questioning turned from domestic politics to Russia's steamroller tactics in Europe.

"Czechoslovakia, and probably Finland have gone down the drain in classic style," a reporter said. "Do you think the time has come for the western powers to form a military alliance?"

Mr. Truman, after a pause, said he couldn't comment on that at this time.

"Reports from abroad said the Russians made overtures for you to meet with Premier Stalin. Any comment?"

He said that he had never heard of it.

In response to another question, Mr. Truman said that he still was in favor of his 10-point anti-inflation program and that he thought that the recent price increase in the steel industry was a further argument for standby price controls.

Virginia Assembly Recommits Anti-Truman Bill for Hearing

Special to The Washington Post

Richmond, Va., March 1.—Gov. William M. Tuck's bill to bar President Truman's name from the November ballot in Virginia went back to committee today, but Tuck said he was not disheartened by the action.

The bill, reportedly strongly opposed by some political forces in Virginia, was recommended on a motion of House Floor Leader E. Blackburn Moore, administration spokesman, who asked the move "in view of continued misinterpretation and misunderstandings of the provisions."

Stated to be discussed in public hearing Thursday at 8 p. m., before the joint Senate and House Committees on Privileges and Elections, the bill already has been twice amended.

Asked if recommitting the bill for public hearing meant a withdrawal from the administration's position, Governor Tuck tonight vigorously denied he was receding from his stand.

"I intend to press for passage of the main objectives of the bill, regardless of what happens at the public hearing. After all, it isn't unusual to schedule a bill for a public hearing," he added.

Tuck's statement to The Washington Post came at the close of a day of random speculation on whether recommitment of the bill, predicted last week, was in effect the death sentence of the measure.

In today's Assembly session, Delegate Robert Whitehead said the bill was going back to committee "to rest in the shade . . . and should never emerge."

But despite reports of strong opposition to the measure, Tuck de-

Radio Chiefs Seek Editorial Rights

Presidents of Nation's Three Largest Chains Request Lifting of 7-Year Ban

The presidents of the Nation's three largest broadcasting chains appealed to the Government yesterday to reverse a seven-year ban on radio editorializing.

They appeared as witnesses before the Federal Communications Commission. That agency is holding hearings on whether to continue a rule preventing radio stations from taking a stand on public controversial issues.

Such a rule, the broadcasting company heads declared, violates the principles of free speech and press. They argued that there was no more justification for forbidding a radio station to issue editorial opinions than there would be for censoring newspapers.

The FCC rule, called the "Mayflower doctrine" (it was issued in connection with a case involving a New England broadcasting company of that name), has been in effect since 1941. Since then, it has been the subject of numerous lawsuits, and has been repeatedly upheld by the Supreme Court.

Mark Woods, president of American Broadcasting Co., declared that the operation of radio in the public interest placed "a positive duty" on broadcasters to editorialize "vigorously."

He admitted that the Mayflower rule stopped a radio station from serving its own partisan ends, but argued that it also stopped it from serving the public's best ends.

Under questioning, particularly by Commissioner Clifford J. Durr, Woods admitted the FCC could properly restrict or control a station if it were the only outlet in a community and did not abide by a "rule of fair play" in presenting both sides of a controversy.

Maryland Offered Valuable Relics Of Early History

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman yesterday offered to give the State of Maryland three priceless relics of its early history.

These are two desks and a chair made for the old Senate chamber in the State House by John Shaw, who was a famous Annapolis cabinetmaker. Ordered by the State Senate in 1796, the furnishings were in use there until 1838.

The solicitor general made the offer in a letter to Governor William Preston Lane, saying he wished the pieces to be a memorial to George Fitzhugh Cobb, who was killed in action in Germany during the late war, and to his father, George Cobb, who was chief engineer of Baltimore.

One of his desks, Perlman obtained from the Magruder family of Annapolis, who apparently having gotten it more than a century ago from John Needles, who did over the Senate chamber about 1838 and seems to have taken the old furnishings as part of his pay. With this desk is a chair, assumed to be the original companion piece.

Perlman's other desk long belonged to the Claude family of Annapolis and was given the solicitor general by Mrs. Caroline Cobb and mother of George Fitzhugh Cobb.

Negro Upheld In Bus Case

The State's segregation law as it applies to interstate buses.

In its opinion today, by Justice C. Vernon Sprattley, the State Supreme Court said:

"It is very clear from the evidence that Mrs. Taylor, an interstate passenger, was requested to move her seat because of her race and color, and that her refusal to do so constituted the real basis of the charge against her."

It added there was no evidence that the defendant was noisy or that she created a disturbance, but that she firmly refused to move to another seat.

"The refusal of the defendant to obey such request constituted at most a breach of the rules and regulations of the carrier," the opinion continued.

"As such breach, it related only to the dealings and acts of private persons—the defendant and the carrier."

"The General Assembly alone has power to define crimes against this Commonwealth. Code section 4533-A does not purport to delegate any such authority to a common carrier."

'Fed Up,' Says Arbitrator In GSI Strike

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

George E. Strong is near the end of his rope in his attempt to settle the 2-month-old GSI cafeteria strike.

"I'm just about fed up," he said last night.

The former Army colonel—with a record of settling perhaps 100 strikes in his time—has been working on this one since February 18. He was appointed by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming after the White House ordered Fleming to take a decisive hand.

One Final Attempt

Strong, faced on one side by a determined union and on the other by a determined Government Services, Inc., said he may make one final stab today in the form of a specific settlement proposal.

Strong said he thought the major obstacle to settlement right now was the question of "the old and new employees." Members of Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO) are picketing 40 GSI cafeterias because GSI refused to bargain for a new contract. GSI hired about 1000 replacements and says some 300 union members stayed on the job.

Testimony at Hearing

According to the transcript of the secret hearing on GSI that a House Labor Subcommittee held Saturday, GSI agreed at first to give priority to the strikers in hiring new workers. The corporation told Strong, the testimony released yesterday showed, that it could take back about 500 in a certain period of time.

Strong charged during the hearing, however, that GSI "backtracked from the figure of 500 last Friday, the same day the subcommittee, of which Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) is chairman, announced it would investigate Strong's role in the dispute.

Strong told the committee that, in his opinion, the committee's attitude had delayed settlement of the strike.

4-H Clubbers Visit Capital

A delegation of 475 Maryland 4-H Club members toured Washington yesterday as clubs over the country began celebration of national 4-H week.

At the Department of Agriculture auditorium, the farm boys and girls heard Secretary Clinton P. Anderson read a message from President Truman, congratulating them on the theme selected for the week: "Creating better homes today for more responsible citizens tomorrow."

At the Capitol, Senator Herbert O'Connor (D., Md.) told the visitors the work of farm youths in the production of food is a direct contribution to the success of the European Recovery Program now before Congress.

House Passes Last Of Tuck Tax Bills

Measure Increasing Gross Receipts Tax On Public Utilities Goes to Senate

Richmond, Va., March 1 (AP).—The last of Governor Tuck's tax bills—the increase in the gross receipts levy on public service corporations—left the House of Delegates today, bearing unanimous approval, and headed for the Senate.

The administration lost a round, however, when the House passed, 89 to 27, the Holland-Whitehead bill which virtually repeals the tax on money. It provides that taxes on net incomes shall be in lieu of a specific tax on such money.

Thus, if your income tax exceeds the tax of 20 cents per $100 on intangible personal property, you would not pay the latter, commonly known as the "tax on money."

Day Full of Action

The General Assembly's day was full of action:

1. The House Committee on Privileges and Elections killed the Republican-sponsored measure to repeal the State's absent voters' law—after a knockdown verbal battle over alleged voting frauds.

2. The Senate passed the bill to provide from the highway funds $300 per mile for streets not a part of the primary system and which meet certain standards. This would be in addition to the $4000-a-mile cities and towns receive for streets in the primary system.

3. The House passed, 60 to 28, the Moore bill, greatly increasing

$85,000 Goal Is Set for Hospital

A goal of $85,000 for the 1948 Arlington Hospital fund campaign, which begins May 10, was announced yesterday by hospital authorities.

The drive will seek not only to raise funds for 1948 operations, but also funds to cover 1947 the losses and for the payment to the Federal Government should sale of the hospital to the Arlington Hospital Association be completed during the year.

Negotiations for sale of the institution have been under way for some time. If the sale is completed, annual payments to the Government will amount to about $15,000.

A major item in the campaign figure is last year's deficit, which probably will amount to $50,000, according to Hospital Administrator Karl York.

Lawrence W. Douglas, former Commonwealth's Attorney for Arlington County, has been named chairman of the fund campaign.

School Aid Study Sought

4. The Senate received a Dalton-Stephens resolution ordering a study of State aid to localities in public school construction. The resolution said 500 million dollars may be required and that localities are unable to do the job alone.

5. The House received a Crockett resolution urging that all the Nation's Governors and Senators meet in Virginia and agree on a nonpartisan single candidate for President as "one method of averting the present crisis." Delegate Crockett of Yorktown referred to the international crisis and the Nation's place in it.

The Governor's tax bill adds $1,800,000 a year to State revenues. It adds one half per cent to the gross receipts levy on public service corporations.

The House Courts of Justice Committee, meanwhile, "passed by indefinitely" five bills which would wipe out racial segregation on public carriers and in places of public assembly. The measures had been offered by Delegate W. H. C. Murray of Richmond. Never conceded any chance of passing, the bills were the subject of an unsegregated public hearing last week and were loudly championed by a number of white and Negro leaders.

$15,000 Balm Upheld for Lost Love

A $15,000 judgment given Lee D. Birdsong, 52, of 1725 H st. n.w., for the loss of his wife's love was upheld by the United States Court of Appeals here yesterday.

Justice Bennett Champ Clark, who spoke for the court, made his opinion the occasion of a scolding rebuke of the defendant—Hjalmar P. Eclow, a Government worker.

There was, Clark said, no dispute about the facts: Birdsong and his wife, Thelma, were married in 1916; had four sons and were happy for 28 years, until after 1940 when Eclow—then about 50—moved into the neighborhood.

The families became acquainted, played bridge, went riding and visited each other's homes. Within two weeks of the death of his wife in 1942, Justice Clark said, Eclow seduced Mrs. Birdsong, later persuading her husband to let him move into their home.

After awhile, the court said, Eclow took both Mrs. Birdsong and much of Birdsong's furniture to a house he owned. At last she went to Florida, where she got a divorce in 1944. Broken-hearted when Eclow gave up the idea of marrying her, the court said, Mrs. Birdsong planned to kill herself and one of her sons.

"An undisputed record showing more of shame, degradation and duplicity in marital relations," said Justice Clark, "has seldom been presented to this court."

In view of Eclow's depravity and the harm he did, the Justice added, no damages he could pay would be too high.

Youth Keeps Frog Heart Alive After Removing It From Body

Young Lawrence Joseph Schaad, who specializes in frog hearts, is not a witch, and the hearts don't end up in a boiling caldron—they stay "alive."

Seventeen-year-old Schaad, after three years careful study and work, is able to keep a frog's heart "alive" and beating for as much as 2½ hours after removing it from the frog's body. Because he can do that, he is in Washington, along with 39 other teen-age scientists, to compete for the annual $11,000 Westinghouse Science Scholarships.

Lawrence, a lean, bespectacled youth, is a scientist because he read a certain book when he was 14. That book, which contained data on construction of a "mechanical heart," fired his imagination. If others could do it, he said, he could, too.

Last December, in his first attempt, he took his fat, healthy frog, operated on it, affixed its heart to the mechanism he had been so long a-building.

A man on trial for housebreaking and larceny squeezed through a legal loophole to freedom yesterday—just long enough to kiss his wife and be rearrested on the same charge.

Charles Edward Young, Jr., 38, of 321 D st. se., was freed by District Court Justice Richmond B. Keech when it was noticed during the jury trial that in one place the indictment incorrectly called him "Theodore Young."

But the arresting officer, Detective Vernon Culpepper of the Tenth Precinct, still wanted Charles Edward Young, Jr. He waited outside the courthouse, where his jurisdiction begins, until Young emerged and embraced his wife. He gave them time to kiss, then rearrested the defendant.

Arraigned before Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Reedy, Young was held for grand jury action under $1000 bond—the next step to another indictment.

READ THE BY-LAWS OF THE PURITAN CHURCH The Church of America and learn how America can be freed from European thought

WHEREAS, God has revealed to the Puritans, that it is time for the Puritan Church—the Church of America, to appear throughout the world and assert the Rights of Man, as they were asserted in the Declaration of Independence, by the Puritans, in 1776:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

It was in 1635, that the Puritans braved the unknown seas and the American wilderness, for the sake of God. They brought with them the magnificent ideals of Moses, Elijah, Jeremiah and Jesus, whom, they and their ancestors, for thousands of years, had revered and cherished as the givers of ideals which have moulded history, and which will elevate the morality of the world. Rather than surrender these ideals, the Puritans chose to cross the ocean, to the then new world, where they could put these ideals into demonstrable, material form, so that the world might witness the power of God, as well as the infallibility of His laws. To the American shores, the Puritans brought the best ideas and institutions of their native land: the arts and sciences of England, representative government, trial by jury, the common law and the best traditions of the human race.

They brought law and a respect for the law. They knew that liberty can survive only where these are. And loving liberty, they loved law and cultivated their respect for it, for without law and the respect for it, liberty is trampled underfoot. Moreover, liberty, without law destroys both law and government.

Yet, paramount in the minds of the Puritans was the knowledge that there is one God who directs the whole frame of nature, eternal, infinite, changeless, full of mercy and tenderness.

Out of their idea of God came the Puritan's idea of man: each man, merely because he is a man, has certain God-given rights, which no man can either confer or take away from him. These rights, each man has, simply by virtue of the fact that he is a man. Also, God created each man exactly equal. And the only reason that any government should exist, is the maintenance of each man in the full possession and exercise of all of his God-given rights.

These ideas of the Puritans, in their fullest application, mean that government, which Lincoln, much later, was to describe in these words:

"A government of the people, by the people and for the people."

Such a government has laws and accords justice to all men. It founds school for all. It looks after those in need. It defends and protects the poor and the feeble as well as the rich and powerful. It respects the individual. It reverences justice. It accords free speech: all is open to examination and discussion. Thought is free, speech is free, work is free and worship is free.

These ideas, from God, revealed to the Puritans in the trials of the magnificent men of the Old Testament, were first enunciated from the pulpits of New England, commencing with the First Church of Reading, Massachusetts Bay Colony, in 1642. From these, these self-same ideas were written into the school books of New England. Then they were advocated by the newspapers of that time. Gradually the citizenry generally understood and popularly accepted the idea of the true import of God in their own government, as well as His true import in their own lives.

Knowing that no government which defies the will of God, by denying to any man his God-given rights, has any right to exist, the Puritans issued their manifesto to the world in 1776, proclaiming the rights of man, with relation to his fellowman, his government and God. But, being that their ideas were unheeded, the Puritans decided to fight for them.

The maxims that the Puritans shouted and emblazoned upon their banners, as they fought the American Revolutionary War, were: "All men are born free and equal;" "All men are brothers with equal rights;" "God will at last avenge the cause of the oppressed, no matter how strong the oppressor." For these beliefs many of them died.

Thus it came to pass, that the Puritans, on American soil, triumphed over Theocracy, Monarchy, Aristocracy and Despotism. They created the United States of America, a State without a King, a Community without a Lord, and a Family without a slave.

The Puritans gave their lives to teach the world once again, to love man and to love God, as had been said by the Prophets and by Jesus, many years before:

"Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and all thy soul, and with all thy might."

"This is the first and great commandment: And the second is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself: On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets." (Matt. XXII, 37-40.)

The active application of their religious ideas, by the Puritans, in the wilderness they found upon their arrival on the shores of America, have, within 166 years, made the United States of America, the most enlightened, the most prosperous and the most powerful nation in the history of the world.

The Puritan Church is an established religious body, which regards Jesus of Nazareth as the noblest example of morality and religion. Its purpose is the cultivating, throughout the world, of the love of God and the love of Man.

It is a Church which knows God to be infinite in His power, in His justice and in His love. It is a Church where respect is paid to human nature; where man reverences the free spiritual individuality of his fellow-man; where God is worshipped with love and without fear; where religion is held to be free piety and free goodness; where the qualities of man are deemed more important and greater than the property of man; where the strong help the weak; where nature, both material and human, is recognized as a scripture of God; where truth is the only creed; and where confidence in His law is the great form of communion between God and Man.

This Church is dedicated to the proposition of a world founded upon the universal laws of God, where all nations shall learn no more war, nor count men of other speech or appearance strangers, where nations shall dwell together in love and peace, and where will be recognized and enforced the inalienable rights of all men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Puritanism demands the development of the whole body: mind, conscience, heart and spirit. Its substance is Love of God and Love of Man: for its a natural religion.

Puritanism stands for all that makes for man's betterment. It carries the banner of brotherhood, love, charity and self-help. Its textbook is the essence of the Bible, made up of those thoughts from God, revealed to man through the inspired psalmists, the inspired prophets and Jesus of Nazareth.

Puritanism is not a belief: it is a way of living. In it there is no belief in any dogma, stonement, baptism or ritual. It teaches that no one is to be hated; no one is to be despised; that no one is to be mocked; that no one is to be resented; and that no one is to be envied. It teaches one to be content with his own, while working to improve his lot, and to be helpful to his neighbor, not from pity, partiality, or superstition, but by reason of reason alone; to obey the voice of God within man; to speak the truth without evasion or concealment; to love justice and to do justice; to reverence merit in all men, regardless of rank or reputation, color or condition; and, above all things, to love God.

Essentially, Puritanism is a living, daily application of the following passages of the Bible:

"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Micah VI, 8.)

"But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: For the Father seeketh such to worship him."

"God is Spirit, and his worshippers must worship him in spirit and in sincerity." (John IV, 24.) [Latest translation of the Bible by University of Chicago.]

"My little children let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed, and in truth."

"And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him."

"For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things." (1 John III, 18-20.)

"Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God."

"No man hath seen God at any time; If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us."

"And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."

"There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." (1 John IV, 7, 18, 18.)

"The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want."

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

"Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." (Ps. XXIII, 1, 4, 6.)

"When my father and my mother forsake me, then the Lord will take me up."

"I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living." (Ps. XXVII, 10, 13.)

"Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? Or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? Or naked, and clothed thee? Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." (Matt. XXV, 34-40.)

"Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the Kingdom of heaven."

"Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted."

"Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth."

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

"Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy."

"Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God."

"Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

"Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

"Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake."

"Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." (Matt. V, 3-12.)

NOW, THEREFORE, to carry out God's will by merging all the present Puritan Congregations into a universal Church, a joint meeting in persons and by proxy, was held October 14, 1945, in the Chancellery of the Puritan Church—the Church of America, at 11 South LaGrange Road, LaGrange, Illinois, of the following congregations:

The Puritan Church.

The Puritan Church of the United States.

The Puritan Church—the Church of America.

A Quorum according to the by-laws of each congregation being present, the Reverend Scott Baldwin was elected Chairman of the meeting. Whereupon, the following persons were regularly nominated and unanimously elected by ballot, Trustees of said Church, according to the by-laws of said Church:

REVEREND SCOTT BALDWIN

REVEREND ROBERT PERRY SHEPHERD

And the said Church congregations adopted as their corporate name:

PURITAN CHURCH—

The Church of America

WHEREUPON, upon motion duly made, seconded, and unanimously carried, the by-laws adopted by the committee of which the Reverend Scott Baldwin was Chairman, were approved as read, and accepted by the congregation as its governing by-laws.

First came those Puritans who knelt on the sands of the wilderness, whose depths they knew not, nor its prophecy. Yet, trusting in God, absolutely in want as in war, they, with their prayers, there laid the foundation on which they built both the United States of America and the Puritan Church—the Church of America.

The Puritans have outgrown their church edifices: Their temples are in the homes; their cathedrals are in the skies; their altars are in the hearts of men everywhere.

WHEREUPON, upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously carried, the meeting was adjourned.

Notary Public, Cook County, Illinois.

The minutes of the adjourned meeting of the society called the Puritan Church—the Church of America, held on August 17, 1947, at 1:30 p.m., at 4 West Burlington Avenue, LaGrange, Illinois.

The adjourned meeting of the Members was called to order at 1:30 p. m., August 17, 1947, by the Chairman Harrison Parker. All members were present.

The meeting having been called for the purpose of either amending or changing in full, the by-laws of the Society, the matter was declared by the Chairman of the Meeting to be open for debate.

The matter of changing the by-laws having been debated, pro and con, it was duly moved, seconded and unanimously carried by the members present, that the by-laws of the Society should be amended to read as follows:

By-laws of the society called, the Puritan Church—the Church of America.

Name:

The name of this society shall be the PURITAN CHURCH—THE CHURCH OF AMERICA. All meetings of this society shall be governed by the latest edition of Robert's Rules of Order.

The Object of the Organization:

This organization was founded as a means for disseminating through the U. S. Mails and otherwise, the revelations of God vouchsafed to its members, on religious, educational, political, benevolent, fraternal, charitable and reformatory subjects, the study of which will cause in the individuals who practice them, a mental development along scientific lines.

In addition to promoting the above ideas, the objects of this society, are to promote unqualified allegiance to the general government, protect the rights and liberties of American citizenship, and maintain national honor, union, and independence.

We have learned at great cost that the world is indivisible by race, creed, color, nationality, continents, islands, the ocean-seas or the air. We are one or we are nothing. We must learn to live together peaceably or we will die. In his desperation, man has turned the machines he has built against himself; this cannot and it shall not continue.

Therefore, it shall be the duty of every member of this society to propagate through all means at their disposal, the religion of Jesus of Nazareth, to the end that it may become an integral part of each and every individual.

Any person of any religion or no religion, who wants to uphold the American Way of Life in contrast with the European way, which has reduced southern Europe to a charred battlefield and its people to starvation, may mail a donation to the Puritan Church; it will be used to protect your homes, your hearths, your children, and your grandchildren, from the unhappiness which now afflicts all persons in Europe who have been inoculated with any of its "isms."

All donations up to 15% of your net income may be deducted from your next United States income tax statement.

Address all communications to:

The Chancellor

eral law. In the face of that menace we need to be mobilizing our strength—not to be opening old sores or frittering away energies on problems that have already been solved.

Vandenberg's Lead

ERP has now been transformed into a bill which on enactment will be called ECA—the Economic Cooperation Act. The story of the transformation is familiar enough. Last June 5 Secretary Marshall electrified the world by suggesting that the Europeans get together and submit to the United States a program for the revival of Europe as "a working economy." In due course the program arrived in Washington. It was screened by the country's best brains. To the Senate Foreign Relations Committee fell the role of hammering out a bill. Under Senator Vandenberg's chairmanship the committee spent five weeks in public hearings and 10 days in continuous executive sessions. The bill that grew out of all this work and which was introduced yesterday by Senator Vandenberg is submitted to the Senate with the unanimous recommendation of the seven Republican and six Democrats making up the committee.

The occasion is appropriate to say (and the applauding Senate recognized it) that Senator Vandenberg has proved himself the model of the "vision and courage" that he bespoke after Secretary Marshall's declaration. If Marshall was the prophet, Vandenberg has been the engineer of the "heroic adventure," and now he is undertaking the pilot's job. He got the barque off yesterday with an allocation in part narrative and in part advocacy, and the whole was shot through with an apocalyptic sense of history-in-the-making.

There will be a disposition in Congress to quibble over the details of ECA. Particularly, as the Herter Committee makes clear, an effort is brewing to whittle down the amount. Originally this was 6.8 billion dollars for 15 months after April 1. The figure was the result of rigorous pruning by the executive agencies of Europe's proposals for 8.4 billion dollars as well as a realistic appraisal of domestic availabilities. The committee decided to launch the plan on a timetable which would permit early review. Thus the first authorization would be for 5.3 instead of 6.8 billion dollars, and for a year of operation, instead of 15 months. Senator Vandenberg pleads that this figure should be left untouched. The figures, he admits, are not sacred. We ourselves would say they are an average in faith. But "in the light of the powerful credentials they possess, unless the Appropriations Committee can strongly prove them wrong, let's give them the benefit of any doubts for the time being. Next January is not long to wait for the accounting with so much at stake."

The plea was advanced with compelling power. The debate is taking place while the enemies of the plan in what Senator Vandenberg calls "the Soviet Police Empire" are moving heaven and earth to frustrate it. They are bent upon breaking up the embryonic chain of ERP Europe. Italy is the most exposed, if not the weakest, link, and the drive to communize Italy is now on. Nothing would hearten the Italians more than the early and triumphant passage of the Economic Cooperation Act. The aid afforded by this bill is needed desperately to prop them up, not by what Senator Vandenberg calls a "sterile deal," but for the purpose of fitting them and their neighbors into an integrated continental system. Italy has been in the van in the preparatory work to unite Europe.

Unity—that is the concept of ECA. To put the nations of Europe on their individual feet while the Colossus is on the march would be to increase their value without mitigating their defenselessness. Unity is the only strength in today's momentous contest. It is the thing that Soviet Russia most fears. Senator Vandenberg sees this requirement with a clarity that has been nourished by actual experience of diplomacy with Soviet Russia. He reminded Congress that the continuity of our assistance is made dependent on the deepening of intra-European cooperation. The central body in Europe with which the ECA will work can be made into the nucleus of a new Europe if we insist that it shall be equipped with an international staff operating a sort of Peace Production Board. Only such an entity will give Europe and us any safeguard against the advancing hordes of the Slav aggressor. The Vandenberg speech was a mobilization call expressed with deep seriousness and minus heroics. If it is not heeded, there is no doubt that another kind of mobilization will be forthcoming.

Retired T-Men

Precisely because their jobs call for self-effacement, the public seldom hears much about the investigative agents of the Treasury Department. Part of the success of such agencies as the Secret Service, the Narcotics Bureau, the Customs Bureau, the Intelligence Unit and the Alcohol Tax Unit lies in the fact that their activities are kept more or less under cover. This tendency for avoiding the limelight obviously should not be a cause for discrimination as to pension benefits between Treasury agents and employees of more publicized units, such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Unfortunately, such a discrimination now exists. Congress last year liberalized retirement provisions for FBI agents, but neglected to pass these gains on to their counterparts in the Treasury.

Two similar bills introduced by Senator Chavez and Representative Love would correct this inequity. They would make T-Men eligible for the benefits now available to G-Men—namely, 3 per cent of the average salary for the last five years prior to retirement, multiplied by the number of years of service up to 30. Retirement would be permitted for any man 50 years of age or over with 30 years of service. We think these bills ought to be on the "must" list for both houses of Congress. The Treasury investigators have an impressive record of crime detection to their credit, including the conviction of such criminals as Al Capone and Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, the No. 1 man in "Murder, Inc." Before the war they were responsible for more than 50 per cent of the convictions for Federal offenses. It is important that they be enabled to attract the type of young and vigorous agents necessary to keep up the good work.

Air Unity

Politely but nonetheless bluntly, the Congressional Aviation Policy Board puts the question of a unified strategic plan for the armed forces squarely up to Secretary Forrestal and, beyond him, to President Truman. In its concise and comprehensive report released Monday, the congressional board reiterates in stronger terms the criticism already voiced by the President's Air Policy Commission. "The board has endeavored," the report notes in the lead paragraph on combat aviation, "to learn the air requirements of the Navy and the Air Force in accordance with a unified plan of action, but no such plan has been agreed upon. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have been requested repeatedly to furnish a unified plan to this board but they have yet to do so."

Surely this is a damning indictment of the failure to get down to brass tacks on what probably is the most essential purpose of the unification act passed last year. To be sure, the armed forces undoubtedly do have joint plans for day to day action which are constantly revised in light of changing conditions. But what the board is talking about is the lack of any clear definition of function respecting not only the missions of the three individual services but also their relations with each other. And, manifestly, it is impossible to expect an effective strategic plan while the three services have only the foggiest notion of what they are to do.

This is particularly true with regard to the unsettled feud between the Air Force and naval aviation. Is the Air Force to have responsibility for all strategic air warfare, or is the Navy to have the air mission for which it contends beyond the mere support of the fleet? As the policy board notes, there is conflict on this score between the National Security Act and the executive order assigning roles to the armed services. But the disjointedness that now prevails underlies the whole military aviation picture presented by the congressional study. The board concludes, quite logically, that "the capability of the United States most likely to discourage an aggressor... most effective in thwarting such an attack if launched, and most able to deal out retaliation to paralyze further attack, is air power."

Seaway Delayed

Sponsors of the St. Lawrence Seaway are naturally very disappointed over its defeat in the Senate last week, while the opponents are making the most of the setback in the hope that the project will not be revived. It is the latter group, however, that is most likely to experience disappointment in the end. For the indications are that the Senate acted out of present-day expediency instead of passing on the merits of the project. Pressing demands for aid to Europe, a swelled Federal budget, a continued shortage of materials and the necessity of avoiding further inflation all militated against launching the seaway project now.

The vote to recommit the bill rather than defeat it further indicates that the Senate intends to consider it further on a more favorable day. It is true, that the seaway project has often been delayed on similar grounds before. But even repeated postponement need not mean defeat. We hope the measure will be revived as soon as the times are more propitious for its enactment.

WINTER MORNING

Here at the wayside station, as many a morning,
I watch the smoke torn from the fume engine
Crawling across the field in serpent sorrow.
Flat in the east, beld down by stolid clouds,
The struggling day is born and shines already
On its warm hearth far off. Yet something Glimmers along the ground to show the seagulls
White on the furrows' black unturning waves.
But now the light has broadened.
I watch the farmstead on the little hill
That seems to mutter: "here is day again,
Unwillingly. Now the sad cattle wake
In every byre and stall.
The ploughboy stirs in the loft, the farmer groans:
Deep in his body, though the house is dark.
The lovers part
Now in the bedroom where the pillows gleam
Great and mysterious as deep hills of snow,
An inaccessible land. The wood stands waiting
While the bright snare slips coil by coil around it;
Dark silver on every branch. The lonely stream
That rode through darkness leaps the gap of light,
Its voice grown loud, and starts its winding journey
Through the day and time and war and history.

Letters To The Editor

"Antarctic Theatrics"

The February 25 letter from Senator Felix Nieto del Rio, Ambassador of Chile, deserves serious editorial attention.

The Chilean Ambassador rightly deprecates a general tendency in United States journalistic comment to undervalue, to patronize or even, as in this instance, to ridicule Latin-American policies, or acts in support of such policies, a tendency which invariably works great damage south of the Rio Grande to anything approaching inter-American solidarity.

Chile is geographically a very small American commonwealth and its total population is considerably less than that of New York City. But its pride and patriotism are fully as alert as are those national traits in any other of the 21 Americas.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food in a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morose, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.
To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that 888 Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing the flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the 888 Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, 888 Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.
Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is 888 Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people 888 Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of 888 Tonic from your drug store today. 888 Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Md. Woman Indicted in Baby Death

Elkton, Md., March 1 (AP).—The Cecil County grand jury indicted a 40-year-old divorcee today on a charge of murder in the death of an infant son born last Thursday.

State's Attorney Henry L. Constable said investigators followed directions given them by Mrs. Ruth Ann Knell and found the bones of another infant at her home in nearby Perryville.

Constable said Mrs. Knell explained she had kept the body at the house after the baby died at birth almost three years ago.

State police investigated after they received a tip a baby had been born at the home Mrs. Knell occupied with her father and two of her four children.

The officers quoted her as saying she threw some bed clothing over the baby after it was born at 11 a.m. Thursday and went downstairs to prepare lunch for her 11-year-old son.

She said the baby was dead when she went back four hours later.

Dr. R. C. Dodson said he was convinced the baby was born alive.

Following Mrs. Knell's directions, police found the bones of another infant in an orange crate on her back porch under a blanket.

Both bodies were taken to the medical examiner's laboratory in Baltimore.

Her father is a crossing watchman for the Pennsylvania Railroad at Aberdeen.

Provision Made That Half Become Farm Employees

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday approved a bill to let 100,000 displaced persons into this country—if half of them will take farm jobs.

Any Senator now may move to take up the bill on the floor. Upon passage it would go to the House, where a bill to admit 400,000 displaced persons has been bottled up in committee several months.

There are about 900,000 displaced persons in Europe. Some of them were driven from their homes by the Nazis. Others fled when the Russians took over their countries.

Held Nation's Duty

More than once, President Truman has told Congress it is the duty of this Nation to do its part in giving new homes to the displaced people. The President made this point in a message to Congress last July 1. Later he endorsed the House bill which provided for admitting 100,000 a year for four years.

The bill approved by the Senate group yesterday set up a quota of 50,000 a year, for two years, ending June 30, 1950. No part of the first year's quota may be carried over into the second year.

The Senate bill would set up a three-man commission to run the entry program, and fixed these terms:

1. Each person must have fled from the Nazis, or resettled in Italy or the American zone of Germany and Austria.

Reds to Be Barred

2. Communist Party members, and those linked to other subversive groups, will be barred.

3. Each person must be sure of a safe, clean and decent home in this country, without displacing anybody, and each must be sure of a proper job without putting any American out of work.

this country, without displacing anybody, and each must be sure of a proper job without putting any American out of work.

4. Half of these jobs must be on farms.

Each person let in must file a report on his home and job every six months. Failure to report would bring six months in jail and up to $500 fine. Those who come into the country under the Senate bill would be liable to deportation on the same basis as other immigrants.

The Judiciary Committee turned down several moves to boost the quota of 50,000 a year. Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) urged 100,000 a year, Senator Cooper (R., Ky.) 75,000 and Senator McGrath (D., R. I.) 70,000.

Cornish Scenery Dominates Film

By Richard L. Coe

AN UNCOMMON SETTING—A Cornish fishing village—over-rides a long-drawn-out story in the Little's "Johnny Frenchman," which arrives this evening.

The British cameras are focused on the age-old rivalry between the British fishermen of Cornwall and the French fishermen of Brittany. The film was made during the war and develops in its slight plot the friendly alliance between Britain and France against the Nazi invader. The film no doubt loses some of its dramatic value by its belated appearance here, but the essential pull of "Johnny Frenchman" does not lie in its theme of international cooperation.

It is in its setting that "Johnny Frenchman" excels. For the Cornish folk and their rugged cliffs are one of the glories of Britain. The J. Arthur Rank cameras have been faithful to the spirit of this proud place. They have lingered on the intricacies of fishing and crabbing; they have caught the surf off the Seven Sisters and the great schools of gulls that are so much a part of Cornwall.

Such a setting doesn't lend itself to a rushing pace and Director Charles Freund hasn't tried to force his story along. His boats and his people are his chief concern.

Francis Rossy Starred

That inspiring French actress, Francis Rossy, plays a sort of Tugboat Annie of Brittany. She's a salty, firm character who likes to go poaching in British waters. Her son is a dashing, handsome fellow who falls in love with the daughter of the English harbormaster, though she has been "walking out" with one of her own countrymen.

When France is overrun by the Nazis, the French cross the channel to become part of the village with which they once were not on such friendly terms. The old fisherman's courage saves the fishing fleet from a floating mine and the harbormaster swallows his pride at the thought that his grandchild will be French.

Looking at "Johnny Frenchman" this dark week when another steamroller is pushing across the Continent gives the film an unintentional poignancy. For here is a picture extolling the simple virtues of plain people and what you ask yourself, lies ahead for them? Will people whose sole concern is earning a daily living never be let alone by the boundaries of nationalism that, the picture suggests, may be eased by time and common understanding?

As an old hiker in the Cornish parts, I was glad the producers didn't stick to natives for their actors, for the true Cornishman can be as unintelligible as a true Pennsylvania Dutchman. Tom Walls, a fine character actor, is the harbormaster, and Patricia Roc, Teddington and Hollywood, plays his daughter.

The French pair are fine. Miss Rossy, whom you'll recall fondly from "Carnival in Flanders," has a husky authority as the white-capped fisherman's wife, and Paul Dupuis, a French Canadian, is a likable figure as her sturdy son.

"Johnny Frenchman" is a welcome excursion into a minute world that should be treasured for its simplicity and rock-hewn beauty.

"AN INSPECTOR CALLS" will be the next Theater Guild subscription play, the fifth of six, at the National, opening March 26, once they put the place together again after Spike Jones' two-week visit. This is another J. B. Priestley play, which had a New York run earlier this season. . . . Thomas Mitchell is starred, his first play since a long hegira in Hollywood. . . . Melville Cooper, Doris Lloyd and John Backus are featured in a cast directed by the masterly Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

HORACE HEIDT's broadcast from the Capitol stage Sunday night, the fourteenth, already has them selling tickets at Loew's three P. M. houses. . . . The Heidt talent hunt, as you radio listeners know, has stirred up no end of commotion, and potential contestants will be glad to know they'll not be stacking up against Dick Contino, the accordion player who's been winning $250 weekly Sunday night for weeks. . . . Dick will be part of the show, but not as a competitor.

GEORGE Washington University's "Agamemnon" is now taking reservations for the two performances next week, Friday and Saturday, the twelfth and thirteenth. . . . Dr. Natalie E. White is directing this production, translated by Edith Hamilton, whose versions of the Greek classics have become classics in themselves.

"JOHNNY FRENCHMAN," J. Arthur Rank release of a Michael Balcon production, opens play by J. M. Little, Directed by Charles Freund. At the Little.

Workers to Meet In Red Cross Drive

During 9th Week

N. Y. Pickets Imported in Cable Strike

The strike against two cable companies at 8 Dupont Circle is now in its ninth week with 11 of the original 43 employees who walked out January 2 still striking and picketing.

Two pickets yesterday at Mackay Radio and Telegraph Co. and All-America Cables and Radio, Inc., said yesterday they were from New York City. Employees of Mackay's offices in New York, they are Robert Kaplan, 23, of Jamaica, L. I., and Tommy Giunta, 20, of Astoria, L. I.

New York reinforcements of the picket line here are necessary, said Kaplan, because most of the 11 employees here still willing to picket have secured daytime employment so can't appear for picket hours 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Key issue in the strike is a union demand for a 30 per cent pay raise. Striking unions are CIO American Communications Association, Local 16, and All-America Cables Employees Association.

China Aid Views Of MacArthur, Chennault Asked

The House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday invited General Douglas MacArthur and Claire Chennault to testify on aid to China.

The two generals were asked to testify either in person or by correspondence. The invitations were telegraphed by Chairman Eaton (R., N. J.) after a closed committee session.

MacArthur previously had indicated he probably could not appear in person.

President Truman has proposed a $70-million-dollar program of economic aid to China during the next 15 months.

Specifically, the committee asked MacArthur's views on:

"1. The importance to world peace and to the United States and its position and interests in the western Pacific of maintaining a free and independent China friendly to the United States.

"2. The measures, economic and otherwise, which you believe necessary or best suited to the achievement of those ends."

First Reports Due At Lunch Today On Solicitations

The first report meeting in the newly-launched 1948 Red Cross fund drive will be held at 12:30 p. m. today in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 16th and H sts. n.w.

Seven campaign divisions will announce their progress to date in the local drive for $1,000,000. Randolph G. Bishop, campaign director, said results must average at least 9 per cent of the goal in order to top last year's first report day level.

John Clifford Folger, chairman of the District Chapter, will address the 500 campaigners expected to attend the session. General Campaign Chairman Joseph C. Grew will preside.

Among the units scheduled to report are special gifts, which began its solicitation early; general business, national corporations, Government, residential and city.

Earlier, at 11:45 a. m., Chairman Grew is slated to address some 200 State Department key workers.

Top U. S. Officials Missing at Grain Trading Hearing

The long-heralded House investigation of commodity speculation got underway yesterday with first-string Government witnesses conspicuously absent.

Although Department of Agriculture top officials were called, none showed up.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson was busy in his office. Assistant Secretary Charles F. Brannan was testifying before the House Agriculture Committee in opposition to bills which would revise operation of the soil conservation program.

Undersecretary N. E. Dodd also was busy elsewhere. Jesse Gilmer, administrator of the Production and Marketing Administration, who had been specially invited, sent word that illness would prevent his appearance.

Pinchhitting for the star performers were: Frank K. Woolley, acting assistant to Gilmer, and LeRoy K. Smith and William McArthur of the Grain Branch of PMA.

The three collaborated in telling the House group, headed by Representative August H. Andersen (R., Minn.) how the Government conducts its grain buying program.

Adm. Brown to Speak

Rear Admiral Clarence J. Brown, USN, assistant chief, Bureau of Research and Medical Military Specialties, will discuss "Medical Preparedness in Atomic Defense" tomorrow night at 9 o'clock at the District Medical Society Building, 1718 M st. n.w.

Business Outlook

Stalin Plays for High Stakes; It's Our Turn Now to Call

By J. A. Livingston

THIS IS June, 1940, when France fell bloodily to Germany. Only this time, Czechoslovakia has surrendered bloodlessly to Soviet Russia. Once again the United States is put on notice: If it doesn't act, it will be engulfed. Only this time, there may be no Pearl Harbor to unify the Nation and declare our course.

The Czech coup and the immediate invitation to the Finns were nicely timed. Joe Stalin fears the Marshall Plan. He has shown that—by refusing to join it, by barring the Czechs from it, by establishing the Cominform (formerly Comintern), and by ordering all Communists to oppose it.

Livingston

Joe has to try to make Americans see the futility of the plan to give isolationists an argument against it. What better schedule than? A political victory in Europe just before Congress opens debate on it. If only Joe could get the proposed "Economic Cooperation Act of 1948" tagged "Operation Rethelco."

Joe is well aware that this is America's hour of indecision. For us, despite the cold weather, this has been a winter of vast content. We're in a production and a consumption boom. We have full employment; we enjoy the greatest standard of living the world has known. Joe sees a gay land, carrying on its business as usual, squabbling and squawking while it does. Joe sees a nation which debates the European Recovery Program down to the decimal point. As if, in any undertaking of this scale, Congressmen can decide minutely whether the program requires $3,300,000,000 or $4,500,000,000!

JOE SEES a nation which refuses the Secretary of National Defense the troops he says he needs. He sees a nation which is having such a good time that it doesn't want to face a fight, let alone fight. So Joe, knowing that, bites off a bit more of Europe—just to give us peace. Joe's waging war economically.

In a great speech reporting the "Economic Cooperation Act of 1948" to the Senate floor, Senator Vandenberg jerked listeners out of Lotos Land. He declared: "Within the purview of this plan are 270,000,000 people of the stock which has largely made America. These are 26 per cent of all the literates of the earth. Before the war they operated 68 per cent of all the ships that sailed the sea. They grew 27 per cent of all the world's cereals. They produced 37 per cent of the world's steel. They sold 24 per cent of the world's exports and bought 39 per cent of the world's imports."

The inferences are large. Europe is an integral part of the American economic structure. If Europeans are cut off from us by the Red curtain, then we must reorient our ways—economic, social, and political. Not only will we face political infiltration and an increased bombardment from Soviet foreign agents in domestic drama, but also we will lose markets—the right to

WHEN WILL RUSSIA HAVE THE ATOMIC BOMB?

In a year? In ten years? Or have the Russians learned the secret already?

These and other questions are of incomparable importance to every one of us. They should take precedence over every other personal, national and world problem. Yet most of us have little or no understanding at all of what is really going on behind the iron curtain.

To bring readers a better understanding of the actual facts on atomic research, LOOK asked an engineer who assisted in the construction of our atomic plants to explain just what it takes in engineering, materials and know-how to build the bomb. Then LOOK retained an expert on Soviet industry—a man who spent years in the USSR—to supply vital, accurate information on Russian industrial plants, engineers and scientists and their ability to produce the bomb.

Working together, the two men have produced what the editors of LOOK proudly believe to be one of the most important and authoritative reports yet published on the subject. "When Will Russia Have the Atomic Bomb?" by John F. Hogerton and Ellsworth Raymond, appears in today's issue of LOOK. It should be required reading for every thinking American.

New Baseball Empire

Something's brewing up Massachusetts way. A threat to the big league baseball dominance of the Yanks, the Cards and the Dodgers. You'll read the whole story in LOOK, on newsstands everywhere today.

For this and other facts about where the money goes, be sure to read this timely, provocative article in today's LOOK.

President Reported Still Opposing U. S. Pay Increases Now

DECISION: The President is reported to have reaffirmed his January decision of no cost-of-living pay raises at this time for Federal workers. He is said to have rejected a plea that he support a "modest" pay raise. His decision covers both postal workers and employees whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act.

However, the President can be expected to approve a plan to overhaul the Classification Act, which fixes the salaries of about 850,000 Federal workers who are paid on an annual basis. The revamping of that act would have the effect of giving "minor" pay increases to most employees under it.

Briefly, the immediate plan to be supported by the President provides that the five different classification groups be merged into one; that overlapping salaries within the various grades be abolished, and that the $10,000 ceiling be lifted. The plan is to be incorporated in the annual report to Congress of the Civil Service Commission. In transmitting the report, the President is slated to write a letter to congressional leaders urging adoption of its recommendations.

But the President's frowns on pay raise legislation haven't delayed the congressional drive for it. The House Civil Service Committee expects to hear at least 80 House members who will support pay raises, mainly for postal workers, tomorrow, Thursday and Friday. And the Senate Civil Service Committee will meet Thursday on the issue.

PERSONALS: Stanley Beggs has been appointed special assistant to VA Administrator Carl Gray. He was Gray's executive officer in the Army. Beggs is the first personal appointment made by Gray since he took over VA.

Albert Gendehien, the Army's able chief of its salary and wage division, is resigning this week to join the faculty at Lafayette College. Charles L. Stewart, chairman of Archives' National Symphony fund drive, has done a bang-up job. He has raised 421 percent of his agency's quota.

REFERENCE: The State and Commerce Departments have been battling for years over the handling of international trade problems. Commerce accuses State of stepping on its toes and of duplicating its work in this field. Similar charges are made by State.

Now, however, both agencies have agreed to lay down their guns. Their dispute is to be submitted to a referee to be chosen by the Budget Bureau and they have agreed to follow the recommendations made by the impartial conciliator. That seems to be a sensible way to handle the problem.

VA: Administrator Carl Gray has decided to undo a Bradley order. He has ordered all job classification work done in the central office here. Hereafter, no field employee can have his job reclassified unless it's first approved by VA here.

Conversely, Bradley, former VA boss, insisted on decentralization. He decentralized job classification and many other personnel functions to VA's various branch offices. But in some cases, apparently, VA officials were given "paper" orders with no authority to back them up.

STATE yesterday ordered a stop to the recruitment of new employees. Faced with the lay-off of about 1200 employees here, the agency also will not fill vacancies until its budget is finally determined. If the Hicks sticks—which is more unlikely—the number of employees here must be fired will depend on how much they are given notices and how much accumulated annual leave the laid-off employees have to their credit.

State officials have voiced a suggestion that the layoffs be made immediately. It was reported yesterday that no 30-day notices will be sent out for at least another month, if then. State officials first want to appeal the House cut to the Senate.

PAID-TIME JOBS: This is a constant year. It's a year when members of Congress send out millions of speeches to their constituents. Additional employees are needed at the Capitol for this reason.

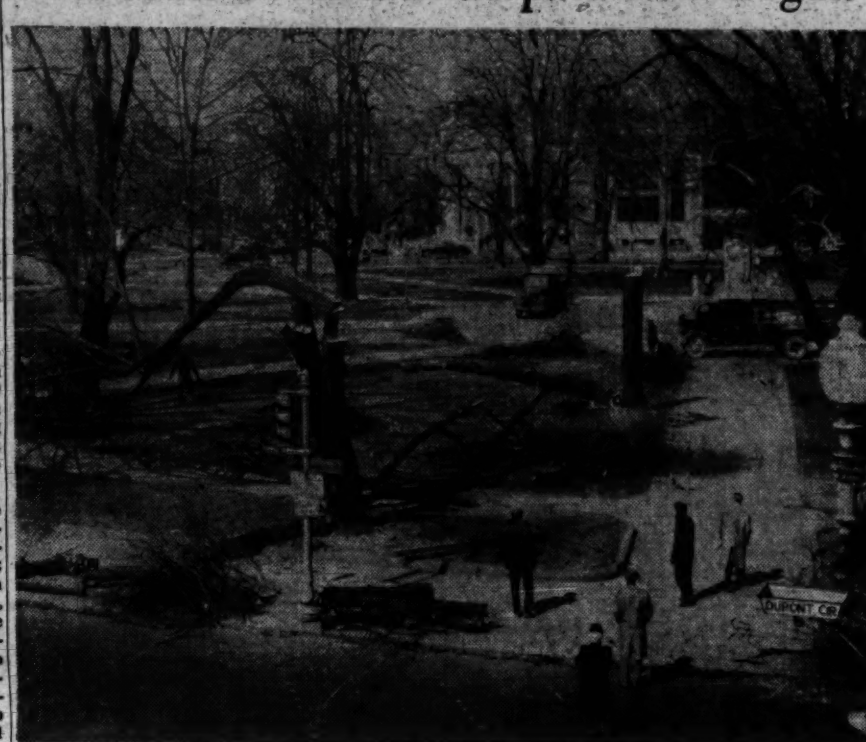

So a rider has been added to the current deficiency bill which authorizes the Senate Sergeant at Arms to employ Federal workers at night to fold and mail speeches and pamphlets. The best way to get one of these jobs is to have your Senator put in a good word for you with the Sergeant at Arms.

NOTES: The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has been voted a $850,000 deficiency by Congress. The House originally had it at $800,000; the Senate raised it to $850,000 on an amendment by Senator Taft, and it was combined at $850,000.

Those retirement booklets definitely will be in the mails within a week. They won't be back from the printer for several days. We'll get your booklet if you write me requesting it. Please, pretty please, no more phone calls on the booklets and when they'll come. I'll keep you informed through this column.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: An exam for physicians will be announced soon. The jobs pay from $3377 to $3905 to start. The Board of Civil Service Examiners at St. Elizabeths Hospital has opened for bricklayer, carpenter, electrician, painter, plasterer, plumber, stamper, tile setter and welder. These jobs pay from $2469 to $3271 a year.

Shop Center Construction Is Halted

Partial Razing Ordered in Zoning Breach on Lamont St.

Portions of store buildings and part of a market now under construction as a shopping center at 11th and Lamont sts. nw. must be torn down because they violate a residential covenant.

This was ordered yesterday by District Court Justice Edward M. Proctor after the attorney for the plaintiffs argued that the buildings were within 30 feet of the edge of the sidewalk. Judge Proctor also issued an injunction forbidding Burman Properties, which is constructing the shopping center, from building within the 30-foot limit in the future.

The suit against the construction project was originated by Herbie D. Burnett of 1205 Lamont st. nw. and Theodore W. Danie of 1206 Lamont st. nw.

U. S. Roads Head Honored by Engineer Group

Thomas H. MacDonald, commissioner of the United States Public Roads Administration, has been named second annual David H. Beckett Memorial lecturer of the Society of Automotive Engineers announced yesterday.

MacDonald will deliver the lecture at the October meeting of the SAE Washington section. Called "the world's outstanding authority on highways" by SAE officials, MacDonald was chosen by a specially designated committee of the organization headed by Fyke Johnson, president of the Automotive Safety Foundation. An award of $250 accompanies his selection.

Judge Raedy Clears 71 Cases 1st Day on Return

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

Judge Ellen K. Raedy, back on the criminal side of Municipal Court for the first time in 10 months, whizzed through a heavy schedule in record time yesterday.

Pausing only once for a 25-minute recess, she worked through from 10 a. m. to 1:25 p. m., clearing a docket of 71 cases, the heaviest day's docket in the United States branch of Municipal Court in the last month.

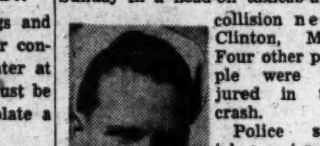

She explained to the court that she was moving things along rapidly, because at 1:30 p. m. she had to preside in a civil court jury trial, left over from her previous assignment. She took a brief recess from this trial to eat a barbecue sandwich, her lunch for the day.

Generally Approved
In general, lawyers and clerks in her court yesterday expressed approval at the dexterity with which she handled her cases.

Judge Raedy listened to testimony in 19 of the 71 cases. In these cases, she handed down 6 sentences, dismissed 5 cases, ordered 2 persons held for grand jury action, placed 2 persons on probation and released 4 on personal bond.

Auto Crash Injuries Fatal To D. C. Man

Joseph Blue, 23, of 28 Channing st. nw., died yesterday at Casualty Hospital of injuries he suffered Sunday in a head-on taxi-cab auto collision near Clinton, Md.

Blue, born in Arlington, had lived most of his life in Washington. He attended District schools, being graduated from St. Joseph's School. During World War II he served three years in the Coast Guard and saw action in both the Pacific and Atlantic.

He was employed at the Capital City Bedding Co., 2719 Bladensburg rd. ne. Prince Georges County police said Blue was driving the cab, which was owned by a companion, James Boehman, 37, of 2203 Channing st. ne., at the time of the accident. Boehman was reported in "good" condition at Casualty Hospital last night.

He is survived by his father, Homer Blue of Vidalia, Ga.; a brother, Aloysius Blue of 28 Channing st. nw., and a sister, Mrs. Angela Mallory of Thompson, Ga. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Four in Hospital

Meanwhile, four Washingtonians were in Calvert County Hospital, Prince Frederick, Md., after their car hit a telephone pole and overturned at Lyons Creek Sunday night.

In serious condition with chest injuries and a possible fractured skull was Daniel Parcell, 24, 1313 Columbia rd. nw., the driver of the car.

The other victims, all of whom were pinned under the car, were Mrs. Dorothy Mullins, 33, 1325 19th st. nw., broken ribs and hip; Joseph Mustard, 29, 1326 19th st. nw., possible fractured skull; and Mrs. Lucy Mellaine, 34, 1326 19th st. nw., possible fractured jaw.

Death Held Accidental; Bus Driver Exonerated

A coroner's jury yesterday found the death of William K. Bennett, 77, of 802 S. Overlook dr., Alexandria, on February 26, due to accidental causes.

Capital Transit bus making the turn from I. st. nw. into 16th st. hit Bennett, crossing at the crosswalk, on February 19.

The bus was driven by Odell W. Watkins, 23, of 444 New Jersey ave. se., who was exonerated at the inquest.

Clark to Rule On Legality of Home Rule Bill

Board of Trade's Opinion Questions Present Form of Plan

Attorney General Tom Clark has agreed to give Congress a memorandum on constitutionality of the Washington home rule bill, Representative James C. Auchincloss (R. N. J.) said yesterday.

At the same time, Representative Auchincloss, cosponsor of the home rule bill, made public a Washington Board of Trade report saying it would be unconstitutional for Congress to turn over District lawmaking to a local legislative body, but predicting that in its present form the home rule bill would be held unconstitutional.

The report, prepared by E. F. Colladay, general counsel of the Washington Board of Trade, questioned the system proposed in the home rule bill for handling general District legislation. The bill would empower a proposed elected city council to initiate general legislation for the District, but its "legislative proposals" would become law only if neither House nor Congress nor the President vetoed them.

"In my opinion, this procedure is unconstitutional and will be held to be so if the bill is passed in its present form," said Colladay.

Alteration Proposed

He said that feature of the bill should be rewritten to provide that legislation enacted by the District Council could be disapproved only by a joint resolution passed by both House and signed by the President, or passed by both houses over his veto.

He said this method would follow the one used for the Territories and "I believe this procedure will be approved by the Supreme Court."

At another point, Colladay declared that "the Congress, in my opinion, can empower a legislative body, created by it in the District of Columbia, to enact such (general) legislation operative only within the boundaries of the District."

Party Not to Name Truman, Southern Senator Predicts

A Southern Democratic Senator predicted flatly yesterday that President Truman "won't be re-nominated at the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia in July."

He asked that his name not be used, but said he had learned from "high sources" that New York Democratic leaders "want another candidate."

Time Out for Sandwich

Among the cases brought before Judge Raedy were 23 assaults with a dangerous weapon, 11 larcenies, 3 robberies, 5 housebreakings and 8 simple assaults.

Shows Little Sympathy
Like most Municipal Court judges in recent months, Judge Raedy showed little sympathy for those charged with carrying a deadly weapon. Of the five men to appear before her on this charge one was sentenced to $100 or 90 days, three to $50 or 60 days, and the fifth was referred to the probation officer under $300 bond until his record can be checked.

Typical cases handled by Judge Raedy yesterday included:
A housebreaking case in which police testified they arrested William Francis Brooks, 23, of 1501 Stevens rd. se., believing he had stolen $200 from the apartment of L. Wilbur Engleman at 1445 Ogden st. nw. Brooks admitted the charge, but handed over a total of $600 in cash when police questioned him. After a further search, Engleman found the additional money missing, police said. Judge Raedy ordered Brooks sent to Gallinger Hospital for a mental checkup at the request of his mother.

Both Drunk; Dismissed
An assault case in which Luella Morton, of 1345 Corcoran st. nw., was accused of striking Norman Preston, of the Corcoran st. address, with a bottle, cutting him on the cheek. After hearing the testimony, Judge Raedy declared: "It was obviously a free-for-all. They were both drunk. Bandit Lures Manager Off, Robs Office

Girl Cashier, Left Alone, Held Up at Gunpoint; Safe and Register Looted

Alexandria police last night were searching for an armed bandit who robbed an insurance office of $588 in cash after luring manager away. Police said the man sent the manager to a non-existent address on business and then returned, shortly after noon, when 20-year-old Betty Peterson, cashier, was alone. He threatened her with a gun, removed money from the cash register and safe, and fled.

The office, branch of the Union

MISS BETTY PETERSON, Life Insurance Co., is located on the third floor of the Ruyple Building, 815 King st. S. O. Turner, district manager, said he did not know how much money was taken.

While Turner was out, Miss Peterson said the man returned and told her he had left his wallet in the office.

Miss Peterson said he then pointed a small automatic pistol at her, warned her not to scream, and took money both from the cash drawer and from the safe, which was unlocked.

Police said the robber is a white man about 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall.

Auto Tag Sale Sets Record First Day

Long lines and longer faces took over the District scene yesterday as taxpayers began their annual accounting with the Government.

While District motorists lined up at the Municipal Center for opening day sales of 1948 auto tags, other gloomy-faced Washingtonians stood in queues at the Bureau of Internal Revenue to settle their income tax accounts with Uncle Sam.

First over-the-counter auto tag sale yesterday was made to Omo S. Armstrong, plumber, 19 Riggs rd. ne., who drew Number 2-8266. An opening day record was claimed by day's end, with 6439 sets of tags sold across the counter and 12,947 mail orders filled.

Traffic Director George E. Kennepp, announcing the record, said last year's opening day sales totaled 17,878, or 1710 less than yesterday.

The office staff, Kennepp reported, also established a record high for opening day sales of new titles (to new residents of the District). He reported 376 such transactions, which, he said, slowed up more routine transactions.

With 22 staff working days left till the midnight, March 31 deadline for driving on 1947 plates, Kennepp urged motorists to apply without delay, to escape penalties.

Some 360 applications were mailed back yesterday to motorists who neglected to include their registration cards or changes of address with their applications, Kennepp said. The cards are required before issuance of new

Wallace Asserts Truman Approved Speech on Russia

Eveleveth, Minn., March 1 (U.P.)—Henry A. Wallace charged today that President Truman had read thoroughly and agreed with the speech which he made as Secretary of Commerce at Madison Square Garden in September, 1946. In that speech Wallace called for cooperation and harmonious relations with Russia.

Speaking before some 700 persons and to a similar crowd at Chisholm, Minn., Wallace brought to the iron miners of this area opposition to the Truman doctrine of fighting communism in Europe.

Trotter, 39, of 1235 8th st. nw., to $50 or 60 days on a charge of carrying a deadly weapon and ordered him held under $1000 bond for grand jury action on the housebreaking charge.

Reeder, 20, a Marine stationed at Henderson Hall, Arlington, was given a suspended sentence on a larceny charge and ordered to pay the cost of replacing a window which he broke in a jewelry store owned by Maurice Greenberg of 3801 Connecticut ave. Judge Raedy turned him over to Marine authorities after learning that he had been recovered.

In Theft Cases Two Girls, Two Youths Face Charges

Two boys and two girls who succumbed separately to the lures of a washing machine coin boxes and a station wagon were in police hands here today.

The lads, 12 and 14 years old, allegedly were striking it rich periodically since early January in basement laundry units in apartments off South Capitol st., along Galveston and Forrester sts. nw., after installation of coin-operated washers.

Police estimated the pair's accumulated loot at "more than $100," and said the boys apparently knew when the collector made his rounds and "beat him to it every time." The neighborhood lads were turned over to Juvenile Court authorities.

In the second case, Arlington County, Va., police turned two girls in to the Washington Police Women's Bureau after arresting them early yesterday in a stolen station wagon. The girls, 17 and 18 years old, were apprehended when they violated a minor traffic law, county police said.

Although they told police the car was "loaned" to them "by a fellow named Eddie," the girls were being questioned about their knowledge of automobile ignition systems. Police said a "bump box" used by car thieves to "bypass" the ignition key switch was attached to the station wagon, reported stolen from a parking lot at 1943 New York ave. nw.

Fire Chief Strips Critic Of Rank Held Temporarily

Emerson Returned To Captaincy; Was Disciplined for Handling of Blaze

The disciplinary action was taken by Murphy February 24 against then Acting Battalion Chief Rupert C. Emerson immediately following a fire that day at 1129 New Jersey ave. nw.

Emerson said he had no comment to make and that he has no right of appeal. He returns to No. 6 Engine Company, now temporarily detailed to 210 M st. nw.

Murphy's Explanation

It was at this same engine company, according to Murphy, that on February 24 a civilian reported a fire in the 1100 block of New Jersey ave. Murphy said Emerson dispatched No. 6 Engine Company and No. 4 Truck Company to the scene and then drove to the fire himself although a local alarm did not demand his presence.

Murphy declared that a short time later, the driver of Emerson's car communicated by radio with fire headquarters and said a box might be needed. Still later, Murphy said, there was another call from Emerson's car reporting that somebody had been burned and an ambulance needed.

Acting on his own instinct, Murphy said, he struck a box which sent additional equipment to the scene. Murphy related that he had then gone to the fire himself and learned that Emerson had not been in the building at all and that a woman had suffered first degree burns and a child second degree burns.

He said he also learned that Emerson had not conferred with the battalion chief who arrived in response to the box alarm.

Transcription Played

Murphy said he took Emerson and his driver to headquarters where a transcription of the conversation from the scene was played and Emerson and the driver made statements.

"On the basis of his own statement," declared Murphy, "I relieved Emerson of his assignment." Murphy said but for the fact that Emerson had been assigned to aid the prosecution in his recent trial here there would have been further disciplinary action.

"He was the top-ranking fireman at the scene," said Murphy. "After he knew there was a box in he did not direct the men but sat in his automobile. When a battalion chief did arrive, Emerson didn't even talk to him about the fire. This was one of the worst jobs I have ever seen in my years in the fire department."

Two Arrested On Gambling Charge in Md.

Two men were arrested on gambling charges yesterday when Prince Georges County detectives and Bladensburg town police raided a house at 5109 Upshur st., Decatur Heights, Md.

Frank Charles August Van Dalsum, 52, a jeweler, owner of the house, police said, was charged with operating a lottery and permitting bookmaking and was released on bond of $2000. Glendon Raymond Yates, 31, also a jeweler, of Clinton, Md., was charged with operating a lottery and released on bond of $1000. Both are scheduled to appear Thursday in Hyattsville Police Court.

The raiders, Chief of Police Henry J. Nebel of Bladensburg, and County Detectives Wilson J. Purser, Richard A. Pearson and Earl Huber, said they found a large number of alleged numbers and horse race betting slips. A ticker machine for racing results, two adding machines and four telephones, but very little cash was found, police said.

The police said they took several bets on numbers over the telephone while in the building.

Emerson Returned To Captaincy; Was Disciplined for Handling of Blaze

An acting battalion chief who assisted in the recent prosecution of Fire Chief Clement Murphy has been stripped of his temporary rank and restored to a captaincy, it was learned yesterday.

Area News in Brief

Never Had License, Drunk Driver Says

Sentence of $300 fine or 90 days in jail was levied here yesterday against a motorist who admittedly drove the District streets unlicensed for the past 25 years.

The defendant, William Glover, 49, of 1007 4th st. nw., also drew 49 days straight time for driving while drunk. Still in the office is an accounting to Virginia authorities on alleged unauthorized use of a loaded coal truck.

The truck, with its unlicensed driver, sidestepped two parked automobiles Saturday at 1st and H sts. n.w., Pts. W. B. Phares and D. E. Wollett told Municipal Court Judge George D. Nelson yesterday. Their investigations led to the other charges.

Everything would have been all right if he had told "a couple of beers," Glover told the court. In all his 25 years of driving her, he never had a District driving permit, he said, pleading guilty to drunken driving and driving without the permit.

The truck, loaded with 1200 15-pound bags of coal, had been reported stolen from the Board Co. and Oil Co., 28 3 Jefferson Davis hwy., Arlington, Va., police testified. They belittled his boast of no previous brushes with the law, testifying he had twice before been convicted of driving without a permit, in 1928 and again in 1937.

Hearing on a proposal to create a sanitary district in northeast Fairfax County will be held today at 10 a. m. in Fairfax Circuit Court. The area sought to be included is 7 square miles comprising McLean, Langley and Chesterbrook Woods.

Held for Grand Jury

David R. Lohr, 20, 6309 61st pl., Riverdale Heights, Md., was held for action of the Prince Georges County Grand Jury yesterday on charges of larceny of an automobile. Bond was fixed at $1000 by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie in Hyattsville Police Court.

Lohr is alleged to have taken an automobile owned by Jack Hays, 4301 Kaywood dr., Mount Rainier, Md., January 15. The car crashed into a tree a few blocks away at 29th and Bunker Hill rd. and Lohr was injured seriously.

The defendant said he had been drinking in a Riverdale tavern and had no memory from the time he left the tavern until he woke up next day in Prince Georges County General Hospital, Cheverly, Md. Damage to the car amounted to $838, police testified.

Social Security at 60 Sought by Revercomb

An amendment to provide social security retirement pay at 60 instead of 65 is planned by Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.). Lowering the age limit "morally five years," Revercomb said, "would open up to countless thousands almost immediately the monthly payments which they ordinarily would not start receiving until 65."

Father Dies Just After Visit To Daughter and First Baby

This story won't be seen by Mrs. Albert Moore, 23, who became a mother for the first time yesterday in Sibley Hospital.

Doctors don't want to her to know... yet... that her father, Joseph E. Melton, 70, died unexpectedly in the afternoon after visiting his daughter.

Mrs. Moore's baby, a 7 pound, 8½ ounce girl, was born at 2:18 a. m. The baby arrived on the mother's first wedding anniversary.

Relatives were permitted to see Mrs. Moore at 4 p. m. yesterday. One of the first to congratulate her was her father.

After returning to his home, at 15 Todd pl. ne., which also is the address of Mrs. Moore, Mr. Melton complained of chest pains. He was taken to Providence Hospital, but died when the ambulance arrived there.

Veterans Storm Capitol Hill, Add 65 to Housing Bill Backers

More than 1300 veterans representing 10 organizations stormed Capitol Hill yesterday, buttonholed Congressmen in their offices and in legislative halls, questioned Senators and Representatives at a public meeting and passed resolutions.

They were delegates to the National Veterans Housing Conference, who assembled here on Sunday in behalf of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill. Their specific object was to add to the 52 signatures on a House petition to have the bill discharged from the House Banking and Currency Committee.

$450,000 Sought In Serum Action

The parents of a 4-year-old boy asked District Court for $450,000 in damages yesterday, charging that an injection of immunity serum blinded, deafened and partially paralyzed their son.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Richards, 6617 Exford rd., Bethesda, Md., filed the suit in behalf of Geoffrey Richards. They said the preparation was administered by Dr. H. Lyng Colvin, 1211 Sheridan st. n.w., and manufactured by the American Cyanamid Co., 619 F st. n.w., trading as the Lederle Laboratories, Inc. Both were named as defendants. The suit asked $350,000 for the boy and $100,000 for the father.

Hit-Run Denied In Boy's Death

No hit-and-run was involved in the traffic death of Louis Jackson Medley near Leonardtown, Md. Saturday, according to Trial Magistrate John R. Abell. The Washington Post yesterday erroneously reported the death as resulting from a hit-and-run accident.

State Police at Waldorf said Thomas Edward Cross, 27, Leonardtown taxi driver, reported to them shortly after the accident that he hit "something" on a Leonardtown-Washington highway, but was unable to learn what it was. Medley's body was found under a fence near the road the following morning.

Abell said yesterday that Cross was charged with manslaughter and reckless driving, and was out on $800 bond.

Shanghai (Monday), March 1 (U.P.)—One hundred and sixty passengers aboard a Chinese ship en route to Amoy were drowned when gun-firing pirates created a panic that caused the vessel to capsize, it was reported here today.

10% Increase In Apartment Rent Granted

A 10 per cent increase in rents for 48 apartments at 2220 20th st. nw. was approved yesterday by Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell.

The rise, requested January 5 to cover a "substantial" growth since 1941 in maintenance and operating costs, amounts to $3860.60, Cogswell said. New rentals will range from $48.20 per month for three rooms and bath, to $110 per month for seven rooms and two baths.

Examiner James G. Tyson heard a petition to boost rentals on 87 units at 1010 25th st. nw. by 14 per cent. Currently, ceilings range from $40 for two-room units to $87.50 for three rooms and bath, he said.

Owners of the building, the Swarthmore Apartments, claim costs of operation rose from $14,105.08 in 1940 to $21,743.64 last year, Tyson reported. He said at least 73 tenants are protesting the proposed boost. Only seven attended the hearing.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After 10 Years' Marriage, Man Tells Wife Who Treated Him as Vassal That He Doesn't Love Her and Wants Freedom; She's Frantic

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Ten years ago when I was 17 I married John, who was 21 and loved me dearly. He gave me everything I wished for within his means, and I gave nothing in return.

Now he says he doesn't love me any more and never can, after learning the kind of person I am. He thinks I have never loved anyone but myself. He says I have even monopolized our baby and named her as all mine.

Looking back, I see now that I have never done right by him. I have never been unfaithful nor even thought of it; but in fits of anger I would say things I didn't really mean, though he believes I did.

I have learned my lesson and only want another chance, but it is too late. No matter how I plead, there seems to be no forgiveness in his heart. He says I am not sincere, that I shed crocodile tears, and he wants to leave me and take the baby.

Urges Wife To Get Job

I BELIEVE he has found someone else, otherwise he would try to listen. I have never held a job in my life and now he insists that I go to work where I will meet new people. I think he hopes I will get interested in someone else. In fact, he says I will; but I know in my heart I never could.

He says if I would give him the baby it would be the only selfish thing I had ever done and I guess he is right, but I just can't think of it. I want to do some noble deed to show him I'm sorry and really love him, but I hope not that.

In the past he never went any place much, because I wanted him all to myself; but now he goes all the time and I am left to watch the baby and think. I am a nervous wreck. I can't eat or sleep, not wanting to lose him. It would drive me crazy to lose either of them.

Do I deserve another chance? Or does he deserve some happiness after putting up with me for so long? And since he is a nice person than I, should he be given the baby? I need your advice, so please answer soon. C. R.

Man Is Coining Case for Himself

DEAR C. R.: John is just as responsible for this sick relationship as you are. Granted that you've been meanly selfish in a conceited, spoiled-child way, he on the other hand has been a weakling all through, whose behavior forfeited claim to respect.

In character he is no stronger today than in years past, when he was knocking himself out trying to please you. His only change from yesteryear is that he no longer lives in fainting fear of being emotionally rejected by you. And I think you've divined the reason for that in supposing he has found somebody else.

In all probability he is currently a slave to some other woman's spell, whose sympathy, bargaining terms and hold on him have incited his turncoat treatment of you.

His vindictive performance is marked by pent-up resentment exploding at last, now that he dares; also by defiant gulf feelings about his own treachery as he tries to foist all the blame on you and force a self-serving separation that gives him the baby.

Meet His Dodge With Clear Head

NO DOUBT it's true that he no longer cares for you in a sweetheart way, thus can't respond with interest to your contrition. But more than that, with his mind made up to follow the gleam of a new flame, he can't afford to believe your repentance is sincere. In conceding that he would either forfeit his "out" or be forced to disclose his disloyalty trend—and he hasn't manhood enough to do either.

Now, about you: I am reminded of the Irish saying, "When the devil is sick, the devil a saint would be; but when he is well, the devil a saint is he!" At present you are sick minded from shock; and it is problematic whether your good intentions would carry over into lasting reform if the crisis were resolved in your favor.

However, in my opinion you deserve another chance in which to prove yourself; John has no righteous reason to deny it; and in the event he compels a break, he isn't entitled to custody of the baby. So dry your tears, rise above "crazy" fears, stop abusing yourself to John—who is no nearer sainthood than you are—and meet his dodges with clear head.

Beauty Spots Back in Vogue

Beauty spots are back in fashion. The little black patches in star, crescent, triangle, clover and heart motifs that have always marked the ultimate in coquetry have been revived to go with the newest fashions designed to bring out the minx in modern women.

Appropriately enough, a young American artist was responsible for their revival. He is Clarence Barnes, art director for a large New York advertising agency, who saw the trend coming and was there to meet it, forming a company to produce a package of court plasters.

His tiny black patches caused such a sensation they have now become a keynote of the new fashions along with petticoat frills and handspan waists. Recently such top designers as Adele Simpson, Lilly Dache and Mildred O'Quinn showed these tiny beauty marks with their new summer collections. The models wore them on the shoulder with décolletage evening gowns, next to a dimple on the chin, or just below the corner of one eye.

ERP Best Possible Chance For Peace, Sen. Baldwin Says

By Genevieve Reynolds

SENATOR RAYMOND E. BALDWIN (R., Conn.) yesterday termed the European Recovery Plan the one possible chance for building world peace in an address before members of the League of Republican Women of the District of Columbia.

"Cost of war or preparation for war is infinitely larger than investing in a plan for peace," he declared. "The European recovery program is certainly no guarantee of peace, but with our continuing effort it has some chance of building peace—and I see no other chance."

Pointing out that it is easy to be lulled into a false sense of security once a great war is won, the Senator warned, "It is easy to say that it is difficult or too costly to exert our efforts for peace, but those will be poor excuses to offer to another generation which might again march off to war."

He suggested three yardsticks that should be applied to thinking this year, viz: (1) Is our opinion based on American rather than political considerations? (2) Does our thinking take into full account the world situation, and if we object to ERP can we propose a safer, cheaper, more promising program? (3) Do we fully realize the horrible potentialities of another war, and are we willing to take upon ourselves the responsibility for the effect of such a war without having contributed every possible effort to prevent it?"

Baldwin said that many objected to present Republican foreign policy on the grounds that it is a "Me too" policy. "So far as am I am concerned," he declared, "I would much prefer to be charged with a 'me too' policy that has a chance of success than I would to be charged with wrecking the efforts of others and taking no action of my own for political reasons... the habit of saying 'no' to any policy, plan or project, simply because of its political origin is a dangerous habit."

Domestic Issue

On the domestic front Senator Baldwin said the basic decision confronting the people is whether or not we are to continue the trend of recent years toward bigger and bigger government with more regulation of our lives plus continuation of deficit spending or whether we are to halt that trend to preserve the system under which this Nation reached the highest pinnacle of power and prestige.

Calling for unselfish, nonpartisan thinking and action on world affairs, Senator Baldwin said that some will challenge the wisdom of our present policy to obtain peace, explaining, "Such criticism is not only a privilege but a right."

However, it is neither a privilege nor a right for any American in this case to seek to defeat, without first applying his best energies to improvement of that policy or the development of a more promising one.

"Don't be misled that money alone can buy or build peace," he continued, "If we do appropriate sums for the reconstruction of Europe in the interest of our own security, that is only the beginning. Far graver question is whether or not the money and sacrifices will be used with telling effect. Two years of our history demonstrates the utter folly of an international debt system... we must join in a united effort to make sure that our plans and money are not simply voted upon and then turned over to someone else."

Warns Against Complacency

Senator Baldwin pointed out that the split in the Democratic Party is comforting from a political viewpoint, but cautioned against the dangers of overoptimism and complacency in the GOP ranks. "Our problem and our purpose is to present and carry out a constructive, progressive program," he explained, "designed to maintain peace in the world and security at home."

Mrs. Addison B. Green, president of the National Federation of Republican Women's Clubs who has just returned from a conference of GOP leaders from 11 Western States, held last week in Denver, reported that the delegation drew up suggestions for the party's platform committee. She too warned against complacency in the campaign and elections.

Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, District league president, who also attended and spoke at the GOP leaders' conference in Colorado, presided. Mrs. Everett Dirksen, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Ask Anne Your Questions on Homemaking

A few days ago I spilled household cement on a rayon jersey aqua and black stripe housecoat and on the red leather belt. Could you advise me how to remove the hardened cement?
R. R. S.

Remove as much cement as possible with a blunt knife, then soften the stain by rubbing colorless vaseline into it. Let stand 15 minutes or until soft, then sponge the area with a soft cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride or other nonflammable spot removing solution. Place the stain on the housecoat over a pad of absorbent cloth so that the vaseline doesn't spread when applied. Frequently change the pad under the stain as you sponge with cleaning fluid to remove the soil. Use the same treatment on the belt, omitting the pad. Be sure to test the effect of the cleaning solution on the belt dye at some inconspicuous spot before using it on the stain.

How can I remove a brown whisky stain from green and white cotton seersucker?
A. M. H.

Alcoholic beverage stains which have turned brown are very difficult, if not impossible to remove, you might, however, try this: Sponge the stain with a mixture of equal parts of alcohol and water. Now pour glycerine or a liquid shampoo on the stain and rub between the hands. Let stand 30 minutes and rinse with clear water. If the above treatment doesn't remove the stain, stretch the stained area over a bowl of water and apply a 10 per cent solution of acetic acid. Let acid stand a few seconds, then rinse the stain in the bowl of water.

I am trying to plan a bridal shower. I have given many of them but right now I'm completely out of ideas. I want this one to be especially nice as I'm giving it for my future daughter-in-law and I know how happy a shower makes you. Can you give me any ideas as to games and refreshments?

An idea for a bridal shower was recently suggested by another reader, S. W. G., who writes as follows:

"Here is a bridal-shower idea we have found very successful in my family. It uses up the whole time and the bride has a scrapbook as a souvenir. First, buy a scrapbook. If you're good at drawing, so much better, but if you're not, buy a 10-cent nursery rhyme book and cut out the pictures. Paste on the right-hand side of the page and print a verse underneath, such as:

Jack Spratt could eat no fat,
His wife could eat no lean—
Want to find a pretty girl?
Look in my washing machine.

Of course, you have a chair of honor and a table for the bride to bring her gifts back to after she finds them. (The book is on the table waiting for her to unwrap after she is first ushered to her place.) After the "oh's and ah's" over the first gift are over, the bride turns the page and finds another verse directing her to the next gift. It goes without saying that the gifts are hidden ahead of time. If they are hard to find, the search is doubly entertaining. Other guests should be in the dark about their location, too, and help the honoree with guesses.

"We usually have 25 guests, which makes 25 pages. Then we fill the remaining ones with some household hints and good recipes. The front page usually has a picture of a lovely young bride, cut from a magazine, and the bride's name and date. Just use your imagination in making the scrapbook."

For refreshments, you might have: individual molded salad (an easy one to make combines gelatin, mashed avocados and finely chopped onion); thin bran biscuit with cheese-spread, served hot; small tomato or cress sandwiches, coffee or tea, squares of cake iced in white and decorated with pastel icing, and salted nuts.

Can you tell me how to clean a very badly stained pewter tray?

We have a mahogany veneer dresser of a deep reddish black color. Sometime ago I placed a piece of cotton saturated with alcohol into a colored cardboard box and left the box standing on the dresser overnight. The alcohol removed the finish from the dresser but apparently fixed the color from the box in its place. Is there any way to restore the original finish?
C. L. B.

Since the color of the box remains on the wood, probably the finish in the spot has been completely removed and the dye has penetrated the wood. Such a stain cannot be removed except by sanding or bleaching and this would necessitate refinishing the dresser. To do this, remove all varnish by using a varnish remover, being careful to work quickly so that the remover doesn't have a chance to penetrate under the veneer. If stain has been applied to the wood when it was originally refinished, the varnish remover will alter the depth of the stain and for this reason the entire piece, not the top, should be refinished. Should you attempt to refinish only the top, it would be difficult if not impossible to finish it to match the other part of the dresser.

Now, when the finish has been removed go over the piece with a cloth dampened with benzine (flammable, so work in well-ventilated room away from flames). Allow piece to dry and sand to remove stains and rough spots. If the dye stain is very deep, the spot may be removed by bleaching. To bleach, use a solution of oxalic acid. (Add oxalic acid crystals to water until no more will dissolve.) Brush this solution on the stain, allow to stand for 15 minutes, and rinse thoroughly. Allow wood to dry thoroughly and sand until satin smooth. The piece may now be finished by applying stain, then two coats of varnish. Sand each coat lightly after it is thoroughly dry. Finish by waxing.

Ways to Prepare Nuts for Nibbling, Garnishing

Salted nuts are delicious for nibbling. They taste their crispest and best when they are still warm from the oven. Here's a recipe for roasting nuts from Better Homes & Gardens magazine. For each cup of shelled nuts, heat ½ to 1 tablespoon salad oil or butter in a shallow pan. Add nuts; roast in moderate oven (375 degrees) 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Stir occasionally. Spread on paper towels. Sprinkle with salt. Or here is another way, rinse the shelled nuts in cold water. Then spread them in a shallow pan, sprinkle lightly with salt. Roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. It would make the table much less attractive than it now is. And, it creates a toasted flavor you'll like. Spread unblanched California walnuts or other nuts in a single layer in a shallow pan. Roast in a hot oven (400 degrees) 2 to 15 minutes. Stir occasionally. Serve roasted nuts, hot or cold, for nibbling any time. Or put them on a fruit-cheese-and-cracker tray for an easy dessert you can get ready hours ahead of time.

Paper-shell pecans and Brazil nuts crack best if you cover the nuts with hot water and simmer them 20 minutes. Drain, and dry them in a slow oven. Cool and they are ready to crack. Or here's an easy way to shell Brazil nuts. Chill nuts overnight in refrigerator. Then they will shrink from the shell so they crack more easily, according to the Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

To blanch almonds, cover the shelled nuts with cold water. Heat to boiling. Test a nut—if the brown covering slips off easily, drain the nuts. Rinse in cold water, drain again. Then pop each nut out of its loosened skin. Spread the blanched nuts on an absorbent towel in a warm place to dry. Brazil nut slivers are a beautiful, easy garnish for your two-layer chocolate cake, sundaes, or fruit salad. Here's the trick to making them. Cover shelled Brazil nuts with hot water. Simmer 3 or 4 minutes. Then drain through a sieve. With a sharp paring knife, slice the nut lengthwise. The slices curl as you cut. You can do the same thing with almonds.

Beauty Routine Combats Jack Frost's Icy Blasts

If your dream prince seems aloof, Charm, the Magazine for the Business Girl, advises all you fair maids to take heart, play a little game of beauty and you'll see Cupid's arrow shatter that coat of mail.

The game of beauty is a simple one if you're looking for a smoothing rather than for repairs. And 10 to one you are, for most young career girls need only a little time and care to improve their appearance.

Smoothing can be achieved effectively and inexpensively. For the hair try one of the new home permanents, but remember to keep your locks sleek with frequent shampoos and wave-sets.

Soft, attractive hands deserve a weekly manicure plus plenty of lotion and cream to keep them smooth. Elbows, arms, ankles and feet should be given lotion treatment, too, particularly if you live north of the Mason-Dixon line.

For the girl exposed to Jack Frost's icy blasts for any length of time, it's a good idea to keep a supply of colorless lip pomade, oily cleaning cream, a rich night cream and oil for around the eyes. Against cold winds, oily makeup foundations stay on the job under powder and rouge and should be kept in your office kit. If you feel like indulging in a bit of luxury, a few drops of bath oil in your tub will soften the skin and leave it delicately scented.

Ballerina Speaks Her Mind

Any Girl Can Have Pretty Legs

By Ida Jean Kain

Brace yourself! Your exercise teacher for today is terrific. Don't think you're going to get off easy. She is none other than the prima ballerina of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo—Alexandra Danilova.

Jolt one: Business girls should exercise in the morning while the coffee is on. "That way," she says briskly, "you get it over with and it's not on your conscience. Wait until evening—you meet friends, go to dinner, and to heck with exercise . . . and your figure!"

We'll start with legs; naturally enough, since Miss Danilova has as pretty a pair as one could hope to see . . . in or out of ballet slippers.

Were they always that lovely? "No," says the ballerina quite frankly. "They used to be big. I slimmed them down by exercising in thick wool tights. The wool induces perspiration and helps slim off fat."

Any healthy girl can have pretty legs in spite of the limbs on her family tree—if she does the right exercises, our authority maintains. She enthusiastically recommends classical ballet exercise. "Women can take a few lessons and then do the exercises at home."

Here are some pointers: To develop calves—place hands on hips and go up as high as possible on toes . . . slowly . . . 16 times at a stretch. Bicycling has the same effect since pedaling contracts and stretches calf muscles.

Kick and Stretch
For shapely thighs—kick. Forward, side, and back—high, wide, and slowly. (Miss Danilova demonstrates the exercises as she talks, and it's a joy to watch her move!)

Bunchy, overdeveloped muscles, she points out, are often the result of too much exercise. Stretching movements, particularly when done in woolies, help counteract too much contraction.

"But legs aren't the most common figure fault," says Miss Danilova. "Stomachs seem to be the big problem. When women get fat, they always get fat in the wrong places—places where the muscles are weak."

Her favorite middle-muscle toner is just the one I've been pushing: Lie flat on back and, with arms

Alexandra Danilova, prima ballerina, says any healthy girl can have lovely legs, despite the limbs of the family tree, and gives the recipe in today's column by Ida Jean Kain. But that's not the average woman's worst figure fault . . . she gives a figure-fixing remedy, too!

extended, come up to sitting position and go over to touch fingers to toes. Don't lift feet from floor. (I didn't let on that we do this one the sissy way, with feet anchored.)

As for waistlines—hers measure 23 inches! "Any stretches and bends are good slimmers. Again, wearing something warm makes slimming easier."

Don't Hinder Circulation

She indignantly speaks her piece about girdles. "Tight-fitting girdles are out! They interfere with circulation and push fat up in a sausage roll around the waist. A small corset that fits above and below the waistline is much better. Never wear anything that hinders circulation."

This world-famous ballerina thinks there is no excuse whatever for women letting their figures go to pot. "They can certainly roll around at least 15 minutes a day," she insists, adding, "The trouble with so many people is that they want to eat and they definitely do not want to move. Leave the table while you could eat more—don't push away only when you can't swallow another mouthful. And remember—reasonable physical activity won't hurt anyone."

Well, there you are. Class dismissed.

THE TRUTH ABOUT PIN-WORMS

Serious facts are revealed by recent medical reports. One out of every three people examined was found to be a victim of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting it! And this ugly infection can cause real distress if neglected.

So watch for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms—especially the annoying rectal itch. Get JAYNE'S P-W right away. P-W is a medically sound treatment based on an officially recognized and highly effective drug element. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets work in a special way to remove Pin-Worms easily and safely.

Sonia Farrell to Marry
Count Hans Seherr-Thoss
In Palm Beach Tomorrow

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

DOWN IN PALM BEACH this Wednesday, Sonia Phipps Farrell and Count Hans Seherr-Thoss are scheduled to marry. There's been no previous announcement of an engagement, and the wedding is to take place at Heanaw, residence of "Sonny's" parents, the Henry Carnegie Phippses. Sonny, who divorced the son of the late steel tycoon, James Farrell, two years ago, has been living in New York with her two children, and studying at Columbia University.

Through her mother, the former Gladys Mills, she's a niece of the Countess of Granard and of the late Ogden Mills, once Secretary of the Treasury. On her father's side, she is a niece of Mrs. Frederick Guest.

"Boysie" Seherr-Thoss, who exited from Nazi land and became an American citizen in early wartime, is a grandson of the late Henry White, our longtime Ambassador to France, and a nephew of John Campbell White, who retired to a Georgetown house and a Maryland farm after being Ambassador to Peru. He's a brother of Mrs. Edgar Church and of Count "Cinzie" Seherr-Thoss, who also escaped from Germany and now lives on a ranch. Last summer Boysie was divorced from Marian Kingsland, who later became Mrs. Henry O. H. Havemeyer. After their marriage Sonny and Boysie are planning to buy a ranch, live more or less permanently in the West. Ranching seems a far cry from the Seherr-Thoss' rather gloomy castle at Dobru in Silesia, from their cheerful shooting place Krasztoviz, near Kienfurt in Carinthia. But there's no doubt a boy makes a better pal than a Communist!

Bishop's Aid to Europe

THOSE WHO were too exhausted after Saturday's Leap Year festivities to go to church Sunday will be interested in the broadcast of the Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church. America's Protestant churches have organized and are cooperating under the name of Church World Service, Inc., to provide food, clothing, Christian ministry in Europe and Asia. None of the funds will be used for ecclesiastical architecture or esthetic luxuries such as stained-glass windows. Instead, food and clothing are to be provided now, when they are desperately needed. As much needed encouragement to combat communism's agnostic theories, theology classes will be started, religious meeting places, no matter how humble, obtained. There's a three-million-dollar drive on, too, and the money raised will be administered by the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief.

After the Dance

SATURDAY'S LEAP YEAR dance at the Sulgrave Club was, to put it mildly, a howling success. The orchestra was kept on for an extra hour and as a result most of the gents, who were seldom allowed to "sit out," suffered from general prostration as well as sore feet. A few masculine belles grew so gray with fatigue that their wives were forced to escort them home.

Edward Burling, Jr., for instance, was such a success with the ladies, he was finally removed in half fainting condition. The State Department's John Begg, looking very green indeed, tottered out before the final "Good Night Ladies."

Many of the ladies thoughtfully provided boutonnieres for their men—trifles made of vegetables were favorites—and those who were not bunched, made up for this neglect by swiping blooms from their hostess' table decorations. Before the dance started, all but the best masculine dancers were nervous as cats, and hinted none too subtly how attentive they'd been at ordinary parties! But once the "doe" line started functioning, most of the men relaxed and a few were doubtless surprised at their popularity.

Most Popular

THE CROWD was so great it is hard to say who were "belles," but using the rapidity with which this department was in on as gauge, we would rate the following (lumping them together, not in order of popularity): Senator William Fulbright, Senator Cabot Lodge (who wants all dances to be Leap Year affairs); General Vandenberg (who wore an Easter lily as boutonniere); Lieut. General Norstad, Carroll Glover, John Havemeyer, the British Embassy's Robert Henry Hadow, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ed Foley, Assistant Secretary of the Navy John Nicholas Brown, Undersecretary of Commerce William Foster, Chapman Rose, Representative John Lodge. All these had an edge on the others because they are outstanding dancers. But there were dozens of others, including Brian Aherne, who did very nicely.

What the gals like about the party was (1) they could cut in on the good dancers, avoid the duds; (2) dance with the men they liked, not merely those who liked them. General feminine complaint was they didn't get around to dancing with half the men they wanted to.

Now, most of them understand how difficult it is for men to dance with everyone they should, yet still have time to dance with those they really want to.

We understand there's a case of champagne plus a small sum of money left over. That's a nice nucleus for another party—for, after all, it's still Leap Year.

Conservation Need Urgent, Club Told

John Doerr, chief naturalist, National Park Service, Interior Department, declared yesterday that conservation of this country's natural resources is of the utmost importance and urgency.

Guest speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon, he declared that for a conservation program to be effective it must start now with each individual and be carried on without intermission.

Contending that nations have risen or fallen on uses and abuses of natural resources, Doerr listed soil erosion as one waste that should be abolished. "If individuals don't stop soil erosion, the Government will certainly come in with a definite program," he predicted.

Referring to the oil and gasoline situation, Mr. Doerr pointed out that the United States is using more oil and gas now than the entire world used in 1938. "The demand is far outstripping the available supply," he explained.

U. D. C. Chapter Hears Talk on Stamps

Harry B. Cayton of Alexandria, authority on stamps, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Robert E. Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, last night at Confederate Memorial Hall. His subject was "Stamps of the Confederacy." He was introduced by H. F. Shorts.

Following the meeting, members of the chapter were hostesses at a reception in honor of Miss Liza Ellen Carpenter, District president, and members of her executive board. Sharing honors were Mrs. Lena Epperly MacDonald, president of the Robert E. Lee Chapter, and her officers.

Mrs. Clara Gaines Fulton, historian, was in charge of the program which preceded the reception.

AT A LUNCHEON meeting of the Daughters of the United States Army yesterday, Lieut. Gen. Maurice N. Mathenel, Military Attache of the French Embassy, talks with Mrs. Samuel D. Sturgis (right), president of the Washington Chapter, D.U.S.A., and Mrs. Frank A. Allen, Jr., vice president of the National Council of the D.U.S.A. The general, who was a guest speaker at the luncheon, is presenting a check to Mrs. Allen for the group's welfare fund, established to take care of emergency needs at Fort Myer Hospital. The luncheon was held at the Army-Navy Town Club.

Life's Darkest Moment

SO YOU PICKED UP THE SOCIALIST BUG AT SCHOOL? AND YOU'RE DOWN ON THE PRIVILEGED CLASSES AND ALL FOR THE EQUALITY OF MAN AND SO ON. ALL RIGHT. NOW, FEELING AS YOU DO, YOU CAN'T VERY WELL LET ME GO ON SUPPORTING YOU AT COLLEGE. TO BE CONTENT YOU MUST WORK YOUR WAY THROUGH AS A LOT OF BOYS DO WHOSE FATHERS HAVEN'T THE PRIVILEGE OF PAYING FOR THEIR EDUCATION. SO, HOW ABOUT STARTING ON THAT BASIS AT ONCE? WELL, THAT'S THE RELIEF TO ME.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

We parents are most unsure about what we should do when there seems to be a need for some kind of discipline. At times a good stiff spanking is very appealing. But any thoughtful parent knows that such a simple answer is too easy. After all, discipline is learning—learning to act in the way that fits with what is expected. Here's Tommy, for instance, who has just thrown a baseball through a window. Some parents would have spanked him or punished him in another way. But Tommy's dad saw this as a learning situation. It was decided that Tommy should pay part of the cost from his allowance and that he should go to the hardware store to arrange to have the window replaced. To some parents this wouldn't seem to be punishment. It isn't unpleasant enough. But Tommy learned to take responsibility for his own carelessness and also found out the trouble that must be taken to make things right. We should look at discipline as learning.

Wishing Well

Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4 from the number. If the number of letters is 3 or less, add 1. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked squares give you.

Saddest Story of Week Proves Crime Doesn't Pay

The saddest story of the week comes from Bill K. who writes: "Please don't identify me too closely, as it is most embarrassing to confess that I recently broke the gambling laws. "We were down in Charles County, Md., and ran into one of their many slot machines. I guess I don't have much will power. Before I knew it, I was dropping nickels in it. "I was stuck for $5 when the worm turned, and I hit the jackpot, and literally collected a hatful of nickels. "The guy who ran the place counted them down and found that they came to $10.25. He gave me two $5 bills and a quarter. Net profit, $4.25. "Then I drove into Washington and parked the car--and discovered that I didn't have a nickel for the parking meter. So I went down to the corner drugstore for change. "But when I got back I found a policeman sticking a ticket on my windshield wiper, and it's going to cost me $5 to pay for it. "So my net loss on the transaction is 75 cents, and I'm ready to admit that crime doesn't pay as well as I thought."

QUESTION BOX

Mrs. W. P. Keys of 3003 Upshur St., Brentwood, Md., recently sent me two questions, and I batted one thousand on them--both wrong. She asked: "What is the title of the song whose lyrics go, 'You wore a tulip and I wore a big red rose,' and please tell me whether Kate Smith has ever been married?" I couldn't remember the name of the song, so I had to call on WINX Disk Jockey Howard Williams for help. With a resigned sigh Howard informed me: "The title is 'When You Were a Tulip' and it's by Percy Wenrich and Jack Mahoney. The tune was featured in the movie, 'For Me and My Gal.' If your readers would come to me with their problems, instead of to an unimpaired reporter, I'd even play the tune for them."

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

Yesterday was March 1, a date with a special significance for at least one Washingtonian--Burton Hutman of 5429 Connecticut ave. n.w. Burton's mother was born on March 1. Burton's father was also born on March 1. And, appropriately enough, they were married on March 1. That's the kind of situation that makes for real economy. The Hutmans can buy a new table lamp for their home and call it mama's birthday present, papa's birthday present, and everybody's anniversary present. But in spite of the economy, one factor no doubt remains constant. As in other families, papa would still pay for the lamp.

MAIL BAG

Dear Friend: As one who has traveled to Scandinavia in the past, you might be considering a trip to Denmark, Norway, Sweden or Finland this year. If so, you will be interested to know... (etc. for six paragraphs). Sincerely yours, Scandinavian Airlines.

Gentlemen:

As one who has never been to Scandinavia, permit me to suggest that you revise your mailing list. You are wasting your efforts on a guy whose travel budget extends no further than Alexandria. Yours, BILL.

MISCELLANY

Pvt. Ernest G. McClanahan of the Tenth Precinct got the jump on the Board of Trade's courtesy campaign. He started his own private campaign last week when he encountered a motorist with a stuck accelerator in Rock Creek Park. Private McClanahan not only unstuck the pedal, but fixed it so that it wouldn't cause any further trouble... Speaking of autos, Diamond Cab No. 1059 has 560,000 miles on its speedometer and is still going strong. Top that one if you can. (It's a 1941 Chevrolet)... The Italian film "Open City," voted the best picture of the year by New York critics, is being shown at the Greenbelt Theater tonight and tomorrow night to raise funds for displaced persons overseas... Tickets at Greenbelt $0.47 or Greenbelt 7852... On hearing that Blaine Stubblefield was to appear on WBCC, a friend of Blaine's tuned in, expecting a discussion of aviation (on which subject Blaine has been writing for a good many years). But instead the friend heard a man playing a guitar and singing folk songs. "I guess he didn't show up," mused the listener as he tuned to another station. The next week the same thing happened--same guy playing the same guitar. Just as the dial was about to spin again, the song ended, and the mystery was solved. It was Blaine all right; he's been broadcasting folk songs for the past four months.

Leonard Lyons...

NEW YORK--Ella Kazan was anxious to direct a du Maurier play. He brought it to a producer, and said: "It's in the public domain. You won't have to pay any royalties to the author's estate." The unenthusiastic producer nodded: "Sure, sure. Next I suppose you'll find me an actor willing to play it without any salary." Kazan left, and then returned with Barry Fitzgerald--who said that he liked the play so much he'd be willing to work in it without salary.

Stanislavsky, the founder of the Moscow Art Theater, spent a few years in America and found the direction and production techniques quite different in this country. In Moscow one season he was directing the rehearsal of a play. A maid brought him some tea. "What do you think of the show?" Stanislavsky asked the maid. "Frankly, I don't understand it," she confessed. "She doesn't understand it yet," Stanislavsky told the rest. Then he shrugged "Oh, well," and casually announced to the troupe: "We have to rehearse another year."

William A. Brady once did a show starring Walter Hampden. The star's role was that of a villainous Englishman, and one of his lines was "I'm a clerk in a bank." He pronounced it the way the English do--"clark". Brady's assistant corrected Hampden and cautioned him, "Don't say clark. Say clerk." "No," Brady directed. "Say 'clark.' We want 'em-to hate you.'"

Guthrie McClintic is a hard and thorough worker when he directs his shows. In off-season he prefers to conserve his energies. One day at their summer home, he and his wife, Katharine Cornell, entertained a visitor who picked up a fly-swatter and started to swing at the insects flying around. "Don't," Guthrie said. "You mustn't do that. It's Guthrie's only exercise." Bretaigne Windust, who directed John Patrick's "The Hasty Heart." One of the characters portrayed a Burmese sayage who had but one word to speak throughout the entire play. He was to point to himself and give his name: "Blossom." Windust directed him to read it as if it were two words "Blos-Som." During the rehearsal the man spoke his word "Blos-Som," and then there was an interruption onstage. Windust said: "Okay now, let's continue. Let's continue. Let's get on." He turned to the Burmese character, and said, "We'll pick it up from you. Give us the cue." And the man spoke his cue--"Som."

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

Politicos Chilly on Truman

By Drew Pearson

During the first few months Harry Truman met in the White House he kept insisting to friends that he did not want to run for a second term. One term was enough; he wanted to get back to his old love—being a Senator from Missouri.

Mrs. Truman—who carries a great deal more weight with Harry than most people suspect—felt exactly the same way, possibly more so.

At that time, however, Truman's close friends and political leaders felt just the opposite. They were determined that he should run again, believed he was the only candidate with whom the Democrats would win.

Now, however, the situation is somewhat reversed. Today the political leaders desperately don't want Truman to run, but are afraid he has the bit in his teeth and can't be persuaded to bow out.

Bob Hannegan, the man who two years ago repeatedly denied that Truman would not run again and who was the first to propose his name publicly for re-election, is now privately sorry he ever made the suggestion.

Ed Flynn of the Bronx, who helped nominate Truman at the 1944 Chicago convention, is also convinced that Truman's name on the ticket means certain defeat. Southern leaders, of course, are not even private about it. They want to junk Truman at any cost.

But although Truman two years ago would have been quite in the mood to bow out, today it may be different. After all, human nature is human nature, and Harry Truman is known to be a stubborn man. Sometimes when his friends, such as Tom Pendergast or Ed Penley or Gen. Wallace Graham are under fire, he has gone to extreme lengths to buck outraged public opinion.

So it may take not merely rebellion but careful planning to erase the name of Harry S. Truman from the Democratic ballot in Philadelphia come July. You can't beat somebody with nobody, and the first thing Democratic rebels need is an opposition candidate.

Note—To this end Southern Democrats have made a subrosa move in the direction of Senator Barkley of Kentucky.

Red Circle Around Italy

You can now put a red circle around April 18 as the next big day for Red Russia. That's the date of the Italian elections and the date when the Communists will attempt their best Czechoslovakia.

The Russian goal in Italy is to win 40 per cent of the April balloting. If so, they will attempt to move all other political parties out of the cabinet and take over Italy completely.

In preparation, a secret Red Battalion of about 250,000 men, including Yugoslavs, has moved into northern Italy and infiltrated into key places.

Meanwhile also the Russians are spending millions of lira in Italy. Money is being pumped in as never before to undo the results of the Friendship Train and other American relief to Italy. Most important fact about the Soviet money is that it's spent where it counts most. Much of it goes to subsidize key labor leaders.

In contrast, the American propaganda funds were cut to the bone by Congress last year, but even the money we do have isn't spent too effectively. Instead of getting our motion pictures out into the theaters where people will see them, they are played at special showings in American Embassies and Consulates with the cream of society—already pro-American—attending.

Labor Ambassadors

In contrast, American labor leaders, such as Luigi Antonini of the International Ladies Garment Workers and key men in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers could exert great influence with their friends in Italy. And they would be delighted to do so if they got one word of encouragement or guidance from the State Department.

But the boys in the so-called propaganda division of the State Department seem to be sitting on their hands, waiting for their new chief, a career diplomat who has been Ambassador to Iran, to take over.

During the war, one of the best jobs of undercutting the enemy was done by patriotic American labor leaders who contacted labor groups behind enemy lines. In the present cold war, however, we completely neglect these tactics. A million dollars wisely spent under the guidance of certain American labor unions through their fellow unions in Italy right now, might turn the tide on April 18 and save millions of dollars later.

Note 1—Best job of influencing Italy recently has been done by General Pope's "Il Progresso" in New York and by Vincent Im-pellitteri, acting Mayor of New York. They have inspired thousands of Italo-Americans to write friends and relatives in Italy dis-pelling Communist lies about the United States.

Note 2—Italy is next on the Russian time-table because it had army is on its Yugoslav border. Moscow has found that revolt in western Europe cannot be successful unless the Red army is nearly ready to march in. If it once gets into Italy, however it will be next door to France and the rest of western Europe can be considered virtually Sovietized.
